Unit district backers charge Dist. 214 unfair

Supporters of a unit school district in the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area Wednesday charged that High School Dist. 214 programs and physical facilities are inequitable.

Students at Elk Grove and Forest View high schools, in Elk Grove Village do not have opportunities equal to those offered to students at Dist. 214's six other high schools, said Leah Cummins, a member of the committee of 10 Dist. 59 residents who filed petitions requesting a referendum on forming a Dist. 59 area unit district. Mrs. Cummins made her remarks at a public hearing on the unit district proposal.

The unit district proposal would combine Dist. 59 schools and Forest View and Elk Grove high schools under one school board and one administration. Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in the Dist. 214 area.

MOST OF DIST. 214'S specialized programs designed to develop job skills are offered at Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Hersey high schools and are not available to Elk Grove and Forest View students who cannot provide their own transportation to these Wheeling Township schools, Mrs. Cummins said.

"Dist 214 has many excellent programs, but if they cannot be reached by our kids the programs are of little value to us," Janet Schmutzer, another Committee of 10 member, said.

She said residents of Dist. 59, which provides 42 per cent of Dist. 214's tax base and 27 per cent of its students, are taxed disproportionately and subsidize programs not always available to them.

MRS. CUMMINS said program inequities could be eliminated with the formation of the Dist. 59 area unit district. "We can provide every program Dist. 214 is providing and make sure that specialized program opportunities are shared on a 50-50 basis between students of Elk Grove and Forest View."

Future unit district hearings have been scheduled for Nov. 10 and 17 and Dec. 1, 8 and 15. County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick said no more than eight hearing sessions will be scheduled and the last session will be devoted to citizen testimony. Persons interested in testifying must submit a written request to Martwick's office to be placed on the hearing agenda.

CONSTRUCTION WORKERS level and grade the 87-acre former Nike Missile Base at Central and Wilke roads that will be developed into a golf course-storm retention facility. The project is funded jointly by Arlington Heights and the park district at a cost of almost $2 million.

Lindberg's campaign never stops

by JOHN LAMPINEN

When he held it, his grip on the coffee cup was easy.

But George W. Lindberg gestures when he speaks, so usually, the hands were not around the cup.

Instead, they'd be used to tick off statistics or cupped to drive home a point or steepled to think over a question.

The fingers were strangely slender; they seemed soft. And the nails were filed but short; a file alone couldn't have left them that way.

THESE ARE TENSE times for Lindberg, who at 44 finds himself once again locked in a tight political race. His campaign to be reelected state comptroller against Michael J. Bakalis is considered a toss-up.

But as he neared the end of another long day of campaigning Wednesday night, Lindberg was relaxed as he ate supper at Henrici's Steak and Lobster restaurant, 2375 S. Arlington Heights Road, Arlington Heights.

He sat with the coffee and a handful of local Republican leaders and newsmen and talked about bonds and taxes and accountancy and finances.

He enjoys campaigning once it gets going, Lindberg said, but now and then would come a sign of fatigue.

He had been in Quincy and Rock Island earlier in the day and would speak in Mount Prospect later Wednesday night. But at least, someone remarked, they're all north of Springfield.

"Quincy isn't," Lindberg replied.

Oh yes it is, he was told. It's not north by much, but it's north. Lindberg nodded slowly.

"Oh yeah," he said. "Quincy is north a little bit."

THE CAMPAIGN HAS begun its run into 18-hour days. Lindberg is often up at 4 or 5 a.m., never later than 6 a.m., and he doesn't get to bed until 11 p.m. or midnight.

Lindberg lit a cigaret, exhaled the smoke, and talked about how it's nothing new. He barely won election in 1972.

His father, A. V. Lindberg, was a doctor in Crystal Lake during World War II, Lindberg said, and with only two doctors in the town at the time, there were times when he wouldn't see his father for days.

"It was like one long political

Dist. 23 OKs 60c tax hike vote

A referendum asking voter approval of a 60-cent increase in the 1976 tax rate for Prospect Heights Dist. 23, was approved Wednesday by the board of education.

The referendum would increase the education fund only, from $1.60 per $100 of equalized assessed valuation where it has been since 1964, to $2.20 per $100.

Business Mgr. James Hendren said the 60-cent increase, if approved, would not be levied all at once.

"We want the potential to levy taxes to meet our needs," he said. "We will aim to keep the tax rate we have now." The maximum tax rate the district can set is contingent on legal questions to be settled by Dist. 23 law-

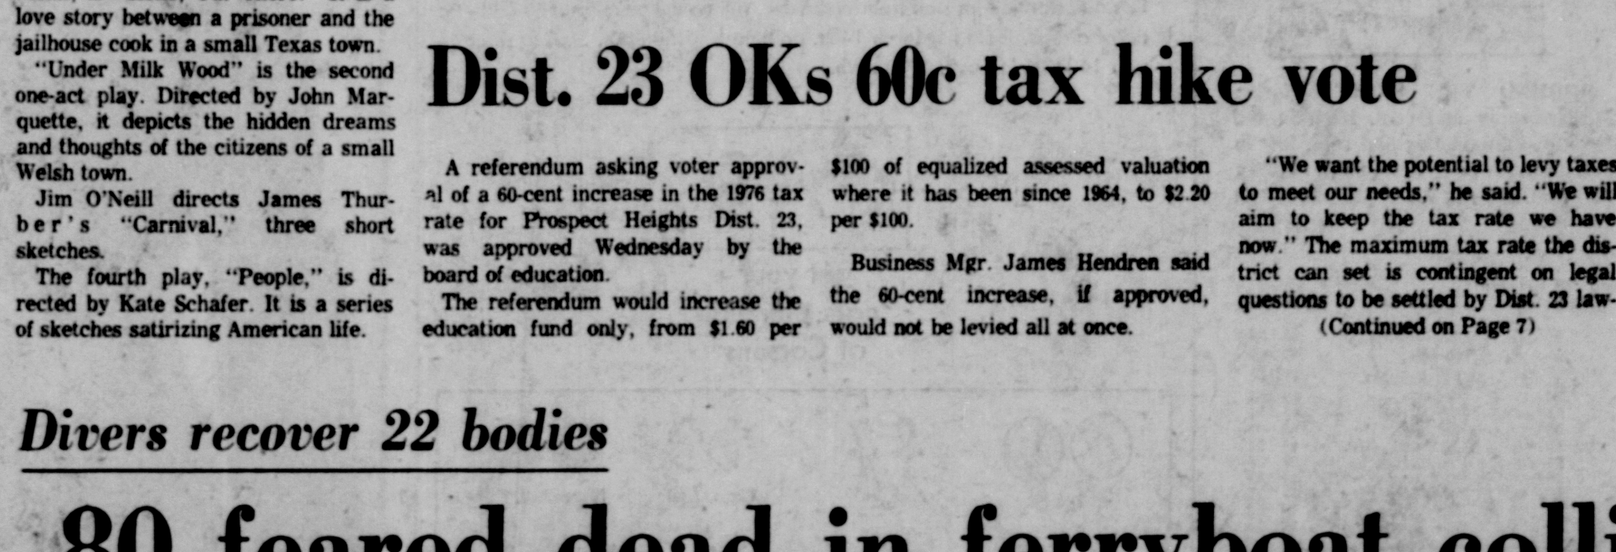
Divers recover 22 bodies

80 feared dead in ferryboat collision



Tug boats stand by during ferry rescue operation in Mississippi River.

DESTREHAN, La. (UPI) — A crowded ferryboat hauling workers across the muddy Mississippi River collided before dawn Wednesday with a Norwegian freighter, capsized and sank. Passengers, many of them trapped in their cars, were hurled in the cold water and officials feared about 80 died.

Only 18 persons, some of whom swam for a half-hour, were rescued.

Divers recovered 22 bodies from the sunken ferryboat, and officials said they thought more victims were still in inaccessible compartments. Other bodies likely were in the estimated 35 cars which rolled from the flat deck and were swept as far as a half-mile downstream.

"Information indicates that there were at least 75 to 100 people originally on the vessel," Coast Guard spokesman Jim Morrison said.

"They're finding them in the engine room," said St. Charles Parish Sheriff John St. Amant. "These poor guys — dammit to hell — they were so panic-stricken they probably didn't know where they were going. Maybe they had gone in there to warm up."

Witnesses said the bow of the 664-

South rallies big for Thompson

by STEVE BROWN

ROBINSON — Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson, warming up for today's 10-city Southern Illinois caravan, was greeted Wednesday at rallies here and in Lawrenceville more like a governor than a candidate with 13 days left to campaign.

Thompson, who received a key to Lawrenceville and a pack of tulip bulbs to plant at the governor's mansion, remained on the offensive, criticizing his Democratic opponent for governor, Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett.

In a speech to a GOP rally in Lawrenceville, Thompson was critical of Howlett's position on gun control.

He termed the Democrat's stand as "soft-hearted and soft-headed."

"YESTERDAY HE suggested to the League of Women Voters that persons convicted of carrying concealed weapons ought to be sentenced to a weekend in jail. That's a fine sentence for controlling crime," Thompson said.

Thompson said with that sort of attitude, "it's a wonder that the crime rate isn't on a more constant rise."

At both appearances Wednesday, Thompson drew applause for his pledge to remain independent and contended Howlett will be under the thumb of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Thompson said he is not campaigning against Daley, but noted people in all parts of the state "fear the idea of electing Howlett governor because they already believe Dick Daley has too much influence."

THOMPSON STUCK to the basic themes of his campaign while talking to about 200 persons in Lawrenceville and a crowd estimated at more than 1,000 who attended a free GOP chicken dinner in Robinson Wednesday night.

Thompson pledged to support all candidates on the Republican ticket. In recent days, the former U.S. Attorney has been spreading his coattails as widely as possible in an effort to gain support for other Republican candidates.

All published polls point toward a Thompson victory on Nov. 2.

Thompson said during both rallies that the governor will be elected to only a two-year term because of a change in the constitution.

"THE NEXT GOVERNOR will only be able to make a beginning. I've never promised more than a beginning, but I believe you want to elect a man who wants to work hard to be governor," Thompson said.

He added that he was "a trifle suspicious about Mr. Howlett's intentions" because the secretary of state spent most of 1975 telling people he did not want to run for governor.

Lawrence County Clerk Patricia Groves said she expects voter turnout in that county to be high.

Candidate vows to save bridge

LAWRENCEVILLE — A special interest group comprised of youngsters Wednesday extracted a campaign promise for a bike path from GOP gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson.

About a half dozen youths, led by the children of State Rep. Roscoe Cunningham, R-Lawrenceville, approached Thompson at a rally here and asked him to save a bridge scheduled for demolition.

The youngsters told Thompson a new bridge is being built across the Wabash River east of Lawrenceville and they want the old bridge preserved as a bicycle trail.

The candidate looked wary, possibly remembering his attacks on his Democratic opponent Michael Howlett who Thompson accused of promising to build roads and bridges throughout the state.

"How much will it cost?" Thompson asked the group.

"Nothing," replied one of the youths. "In fact it will save about $165,000."

Thompson was then told by a member of the young group that the state would spend $165,000 to demolish the structure.

"If it will save money, we'll do it," Thompson said. "What we really need is more committees like this one coming to Springfield and telling us how to save money."

Gunman holds cops at bay 5 hours

A 22-year-old Palatine man, armed with a 12-gauge shotgun, fired at police and held 15 officers at bay for five hours early Wednesday before surrendering. Charged with attempted murder and armed violence is Mark Breuer, 22, of 915 Countryside Dr. Breuer allegedly barricaded himself in his second floor apartment and threatened to kill anyone who tried to enter. His wife, Denise, and their 8-month-old son escaped after Breuer allegedly began shooting up their apartment shortly after midnight Wednesday. Breuer allegedly fired two blasts through the door of his apartment at two patrolmen who responded to his wife's call for help, police said. Police evacuated at least 24 families in buildings within range of Breuer's gun and surrounded his apartment. Police finally talked Breuer into surrendering at 5:30 a.m. Wednesday. No one was reported injured. Breuer is being held in lieu of $150,000 bond, and will appear in Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court today for a preliminary hearing.

Mansfield hoped to be alive

Police hope Michael D. Mansfield, 20, of Rolling Meadows, is still alive and may come out of hiding now that the alleged murderer he was to testify against is in custody. However, police reported no new developments in the bizarre case of Russel Smrekar, 21, of Joliet, who was arrested Monday and charged with the Oct. 9 shotgun murders of two other witnesses who were to testify against him in a shoplifting case in Lincoln, Ill., where Smrekar and Mansfield were students at Lincoln College. Mansfield, witness in a burglary case, has been missing since December. Also missing is another witness in the shoplifting case, a 51-year-old Lincoln woman whose bloodstained car was found by police in Bloomington.

Fear 75-100 dead in capsized ferryboat

foot long Norwegian freighter Frosta slammed into the side of the 120-foot ferryboat George Prince just behind amidships, pushed the smaller vessel over and then ground it into the Mississippi mud in about 40 feet of water. The stern of the George Prince showed above the surface.

The river at that point, about 30 miles upstream from New Orleans, varies from 40 feet to 200 feet deep.

Two eyewitnesses to the tragedy were P. J. Breaud and his son Gwen, who said they were unable to board the ferryboat because crewmen had parked the cars inefficiently. They were sitting on the dock — the same one President Ford left from on his paddlewheel campaign up the Mississippi — when the wreck occurred.

"It looked to me like the bow of the ship hit the ferry in direct center," said Breaud. "It just pushed the ferry and you could see the back end of it sinking. Then the lights went out."

A crane from the Avondale Shipyards was floated upstream and workmen said it would be about midnight before it could be put in place to lift the ferryboat from the mud. Officials said workmen would continue on that effort through the night. The ferry was stuck in the river bottom with its stern above surface.

The Coast Guard said a formal inquiry into the collision would begin either Thursday or Friday.

The George Prince was crowded with oil and chemical plant employes taking the 7-minute ride to work across the river. The ferryboat first rose out of the water and then was crushed down by the 22,000-ton freighter.

"I get chills when I think about it," said Capt. Bettis R. Scott, pilot of another nearby ferry.

"People were sleeping in their cars. That ship was coming right up and hit right against the wheelhouse and zap — it's flipped over. Couldn't nobody have had time to grab a life preserver."

Jerry Mayo was standing on the deck of a nearby ferry when the Frosta appeared out of the darkness.

"It looked to me like the ship blowed for the ferry. He blowed four or five times," he said. "I don't know if he was going too fast and couldn't back off or what but he got right in front of the ship. The ship was pushing the ferry upriver and it capsized it."

After the 6:15 a.m. CDT accident, only the stern of the boat showed above the water. The cabin and main deck were mashed six feet into the river mud.

No basis for Ford-Watergate investigation: Levi

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Edward Levi Wednesday turned down congressional requests that he investigate allegations that President Ford helped block a House committee Watergate investigation in 1972.

Levi said the Justice Department reviewed existing evidence and found no basis for questioning Ford's testimony at his vice presidential confirmation hearings that he did not act at the behest of the White House.

"Accordingly, the Department of Justice declines to conduct a further, formal investigation of its own or to request the special prosecutor to conduct a further investigation," Levi said in a statement.

Earlier in the day, at a news conference, the President stood by his 1973 testimony that he recalled no White House overtures to block a House Banking Committee investigation of Watergate.

And he said he did not consider his actions as House Republican leader at the time to constitute interference with the inquiry.

Levi's decision removed the last remaining threat of an investigation of Ford within the final two weeks of his campaign against Jimmy Carter.

Special Watergate prosecutor Charles Ruff last week announced he found no evidence supporting allegations that Ford violated campaign finance laws in his 1972 campaign for re-election to his House seat.

Democratic Reps. Elizabeth Holtzman of New York and John Conyers of Michigan urged Levi in letters this week to order that Ruff investigate allegations the White House contacted Ford about blocking the 1972 Watergate inquiry.

Former White House aide John Dean had questioned whether Ford told the truth when he testified he acted on his own in opposing the 1972 Watergate investigation by the House Banking Committee.

"Failure to investigate this matter would leave a cloud hanging over the election," Rep. Holtzman said in her letter to the attorney general.

Levi said the Justice Department studied a transcript of Dean's televised remarks on Oct. 12, his statements and testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee, and testimony by Ford and others before the House Judiciary Committee.

Levi said the department also considered denials by two former Richard Nixon aides Dean named as those who contacted Ford about the Watergate investigation.

"The department has also considered the times and circumstances under which these recent and past statements and testimony were given and . . . also checked with former Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski," Levi said.

Jaworski was asked what statements were made to him during his Watergate investigation, Levi said, and "on these bases it has been concluded that there is no credible evidence, new or old, making appropriate the initiation of a further investigation."

Ford, asked during the news conference about a report that he might pardon Watergate conspirators John Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, replied: "There is no validity whatsoever to that rumor."

Thai airbase manned by Americans

The United States has been using an airbase supposedly abandoned since the Indochina War for U.S. military and spy flights "for some time," an American spokesman said Wednesday in Bangkok. The Royal Thai Air Force Base at Takhli, 90 miles north of Bangkok, is partly manned by Americans on contract to the U.S. government who refuel and maintain American planes based in the Philippines and the Indian Ocean, the spokesman said. The admission Wednesday was the first confirmation of reports that the United States, which officially ended its war commitment in Thailand on July 20, has been using a military base in Thailand.

Smith warns pressure will fail

Prime Minister Ian Smith left for Geneva Wednesday, warning the United States and Britain they will fail if they try to pressure him to accept new black demands on an interim Rhodesian government. At an airport news conference, Smith was asked if the United States and Britain would use the same pressures that compelled him to accept majority rule within two years to force acceptance of the nationalists' demands. "They (the Western powers) will probably try," he said. "But, if you've got any money and you want to have a bet, you can bet for sure that they'll lose out on that one."

Lebanon terror bombardment intensifies

Christians and Moslems intensified their terror bombardment of the capital's civilian areas Wednesday with the "worst shelling of the war," darkening the outlook for the new ceasefire due to begin at dawn. Despite appeals for peace, spokesmen for both sides in the civil war were pessimistic. The Palestinian guerrillas charged again Wednesday that Israel had taken part in fighting inside Lebanon. Beirut radio said the deadly rain of 80-and 120mm mortars that has devastated the city since Tuesday was "by far the worst shelling of the war." More than 1,500 shells fell in West Bierut alone in a nine-hour period.

Common Cause cites conflict potential

Common Cause charged Wednesday the executive branch of government contains actual or potential conflict of interest cases among bureaucrats with financial holdings or industry ties. The public interest lobby said a study of financial holdings and employment histories of agency officials shows "the integrity and objectivity of many Executive Branch actons are seriously undermined by conflicts of interest in which top executive personnel are involved." The "clearest conflict of interest occurs," the study said, when officials own stock in a company that their decisions can directly affect.

Common Cause advocated tough new financial disclosure rules requiring top-level employes and officials to give an annual public financial report including sources of income, concerns in which they have a financial interest and outside income.

Health officials see confidence in flu program

ATLANTA (UPI) — More than two million Americans received swine flu shots last week at the height of reports doubting the safety of the vaccine, and federal health officials said Wednesday the turnout strongly indicates confidence in the nationwide inoculation program.

The national Center for Disease Control said most of the 2,109,706 Americans receiving flu immunizations were elderly persons or the chronically ill, another indication the adverse publicity did not scare away great numbers from getting inoculations.

Health officials feared last week the deaths of 35 elderly persons shortly after getting flu shots would diminish confidence in the program. The CDC said, however, the deaths were not connected with the vaccine and those who died suffered from chronic ailments.

"That's pretty good," said Windell Bradford, associate director of the CDC's swine flu inoculation task force, referring to the 2,109,000 inoculation figure last week.

"I think that as time goes on, more and more people will be getting their flu shots. There will really be a pick-up in the program the latter part of this month and the first of November when the mass inoculation clinics start up," Bradford said.

Since the $135 million immunization program started Oct. 2, some 2,787,837 doses of flu vaccine have been administered. The CDC said 13,197 doses were given during the first week of the program and 664,934 in the second week. The number of Americans lining up for their flu shots then took a big jump to more than two million last week.

Bradford said distribution of the vaccine was proceeding smoothly with 39,601,500 doses of bivalent and monovalent vaccine received by the 50 state health departments.

Bradford said the flow of vaccine from the drug manufacturers to the states is slightly ahead of contract requirements. The CDC said more than 70 million doses of vaccine are expected to be ready for use in the nationwide clinics by the first of November.

ZORRO, AN 8-YEAR-OLD German shepherd/wolf, was named the Ken-L-Ration 1976 Dog Hero of the Year Wednesday. The dog was cited for pulling his master (Mark Cooper) out of a whirlpool after he had fallen 85 feet into a ravine and was knocked unconscious. Zorro is seen at home in Orangevale, Calif., with Cinnamon Cooper, 5, and her 6-month-old brother, Christopher.

Israel was in fact a burden: Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford said Wednesday that during the 1973 Mideast war, Israel was in fact a burden to the United States and verified the controversial military analysis of Gen. George S. Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

But he said some of Brown's comments were "ill-advised" and he hoped Brown would not make such comments again.

"Since I've been president," Ford told a news conference, "in order to make Israel strong militarily, the Ford administration has either granted or sold about $2.5 billion worth of military equipment to the state of Israel and the net result is today, Israel is stronger militarily than it was prior to the Yom Kippur War."

"The United States is dedicated to the security and safety of Israel," Ford said. "They're a democratic state in an area where democracy does not flourish."

In 1973, U.S. reserve stocks of tanks in Europe were reduced to make up for the Israeli tanks destroyed in the first two weeks of fighting.

"For a period of time," said Ford, "one could say that the immediate needs of Israel in a crisis were a burden to the United States."

Ford therefore backed up the controversial statement Brown made in April to cartoonist Raman P. Lurie in which he said of Israel: "It's got to be considered a burden."

Brown said later that he supported U.S. policy towards Israel. Ford said he would keep the Air Force general at his post as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff because "he has a fine military record."

Nevertheless, Ford said, "Some of those statements were impudent and ill-advised, and I certainly don't believe Gen. Brown should make those comments again."

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., repeated his opposition to Brown Wednesday, saying: "I believe that opinion in the armed forces on this subject requires further inquiry and that the paramountcy of civilian control of the armed forces and of the U.S. military strategy is a vital element of the U.S. government."

Robert Shor, national commander of the Jewish War Veterans U.S.A., said Brown's opinions were "more a burden to this country's interests than an asset. We will continue to urge the President to reconsider the very real liabilities attached to General Brown's service as chief military officer in this nation."

Mrs. Ford was the widow of Edsel B. Ford, the only son of Automotive pioneer Henry Ford and is the mother of the Ford Motor Co.'s chief executive officer, Henry Ford II. Her other children are Benson, a Ford vice President, William Clay, a Ford executive and owner of the Detroit Lions, and Josephine, the wife of Walter Buhl Ford. One of Mrs. Ford's most important actions came in 1943 when she helped force her elderly father-in-law to step down and allow her son, Henry II to take over as head of the Ford Motor Co., which had lost millions of dollars each month under the rule of the elder Ford.

• Chogyal (King) Palden Thondup Namgyal, 53, who lost his domain on the rooftop of the world to India a year ago, was still unconscious Wednesday from an overdose of sleeping pills. His American socialite wife, Hope Cooke — who left him three years ago — was "weeping and distraught" in New York.

• Chrystie Jenner — wife of Olympic decathlon champion Bruce Jenner is featured in an article on sex exploitation encountered by stewardesses. In the Ladies' Home Journal for November she says that on a charter flight, while she was a United Airlines flight attendant, "A man actually reached under my dress. I knocked him unconscious."

• Making her first North American film in 10 years, actress Sophia Loren is working at her favorite role both on and off the screen — that of being a mother. "Playing a mother role is the most an actress can look for," said Miss Loren, who is filming a contemporary version of the Greek myth "Oedipus and Jocasta" in Canada. Miss Loren has two sons, 3 and 7.

• Ex-Beatle Paul McCartney said in London he hopes the Soviet Union's decision to release his latest album will result in a concert tour. "I would really like to go to Russia," McCartney said. "They are basically just like the West. It's only their politics which makes them seem gray and drab."

Rock throwers kill 1, injure 2

Twenty-five pound rocks thrown from a speeding car smashed through the windshields of a semi and two autos Tuesday night and early Wednesday near Woodstock, killing a truck driver and injuring two other drivers. Sheriff's police mounted a search for the rock throwers in the region 50 miles northwest of Chicago. "I'm treating this as a murder," said McHenry County Sheriff Arthur Tyrrell. "It's the same thing as taking a gun and shooting somebody." The rocks, approximately 14 inches in diameter and weighing about 25 pounds, were believed stolen earlier Tuesday night from the entrance of the Stone Lake subdivision in Woodstock, authorities said. The dead truck driver was identified as David Klawes, 26, Lawrence.

Adoption hearings continue

A young woman testified Wednesday that she was flown from Chicago to New York to give birth to her baby after she had signed documents at a Chicago abortion clinic giving up her rights to the child she expected. She said she was later urged to recruit other pregnant women to give away their babies the same way. The young woman, who asked that her name be withheld, told her story of the interstate adoption racket to the Illinois Senate Judiciary Committee, which is holding hearings into adoption abuses.

The woman said she visited a Chicago abortion clinic in 1975 because "I was mixed up . . . I didn't know what to do." Trembling from emotion as she testified, she said a man at the clinic describing himself as a doctor talked her into signing documents relinquishing her rights to the baby during her first visit to the clinic. She said she was flown to New York to give birth to her baby. There she said she met four other Chicago area women aged 18 to 19, who had also been convinced by the same suburban clinic to have their babies in New York and then hand them over for adoption. She said she was told that if she changed her mind, she would have to repay the clinic all the expenses, which the clinic estimated to be $2,000.

Illinois briefs

Scott asks lists of boycott firms

Since Illinois has an antiboycott law, says Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott, the federal government should turn over the names of any firms cooperating with "any foreign boycott actions." Scott said Wednesday he has asked U.S. Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson and the U.S. House Commerce, Consumer and Monetary Affairs Subcommittee, which is weighing federal anti-boycott legislation, for the lists. The Illinois boycott law makes it illegal for firms doing business in Illinois to take part in boycotts like that imposed by certain Arab countries against Israel.

Carter funds questioned

The chairman of the Republican National Committee said Wednesday Jimmy Carter's recent release of campaign contributions than it has answered, including where $200,000 in funds have tions than it has answered, including were $200,000 in funds have gone. Mary Louise Smith told a news conference in Chicago that Carter's 1970 contributiion list, released Monday, shows that Carter raised about $700,000 in his successful campaign for governor six years ago. But she said newspaper reports show that the campaign cost only $500,000. She said she was not making allegations of illegality but said, "All I'm asking is how $200,000 is missing." She also raised questions about Carter's acceptance of weekend trips from large Georgia corporations during his tenure as goveruor. She said he accepted the trips from some of the 100-large corporations which contributed more than $57,000 to his campaign.

I don't blame him: Thompson

Republican gubernatorial candidate James Thompson Wednesday said that although Anton Kerner is making false charges, he doesn't personally blame the young man because Kerner is "loyal to the memory of his father. I just try to put it behind me, but it gets difficult sometimes," the former U.S. attorney said. Anton Kerner, son of the late Gov. Otto Kerner, has charged that the Nixon administration ordered Thompson to prosecute his father as part of a plot to "get" Illinois Democrats. Thompson, in an interview taped for WCIA-TV in Champaign said the charges are old and untrue, but he doesn't hold them against Kerner.

Asked if he thinks other persons are pushing Kerner to make the accusations, Thompson noted that Kerner first made the charge at a meeting of the Cook County Democratic Central Committee earlier in the gubernatorial campaign. "You don't get on that platform unless you're invited," he said.

Assessor's aide to speak today

Dennis P. Dunne, administrative assistant to the Cook County Assessor, will be the speaker at todays meeting of the Arlington Heights Coalition of Homeowner's Associations.

The meeting will be at Frontier Park, 1933 N. Kennicott Ave., at 8:15 p.m. and is open to all homeowners.

Dunne will discuss the assessor's proposal to reduce the level of assessment on homes in the Northeast Quadrant from 22 per cent of the market value to 16 per cent. If the assessments are not lowered, property owners could be faced with a substantial tax increase next year, according to the assessor's office.

Safety first with candy coupons

Redeemable 5-cent coupons to be distributed instead of candy on Halloween will go on sale Friday for the first time in Arlington Heights.

The project, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, St. Edna's Women's club and several homeowners' associations, is part of a villagewide effort to prevent poisoned or razor-filled candy from being given to children.

"We're stressing safety," said Mrs. Robert Hutchins, a St. Edna's Women's Club member. "It's safer to give out coupons to protect children against poison or dangerous objects being put in candy. We feel it's better to prevent something than wait for it to happen before we act."

Friday through Oct. 30 coupons will be sold during business hours at Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan, the Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights, First Arlington National Bank, North Point State Bank, Northwest Trust and Savings Bank, Tollway-Arlington National Bank and the Chamber of Commerce.

EARL JOHNSON, executive manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said 35,000 coupons will be printed. Children can use them to buy items at 18 participating stores listed on the back of the coupon.

Merchants can redeem the certificates at the Chamber of Commerce for cash from coupon sales.

Participating stores include Bresler's Ice Cream Shop, Walgreens, Jewel and Turnstyle in the north Point Shopping Center, Arlington Heights and Rand roads; Convenient Food Mart and Mink's Hot Dogs in the Pal-Windsor Shopping Center, Palatine Road and Windsor Drive; and the Jewel store in Arlington Market Shopping Center, 908 E. Kensington Rd.

Also, Randway Drugs and Pharmacy and Mayberry's Ice Cream and Candy Shoppe in the Brandenberry Park Shopping Center, 2314 Rand Rd.; Westgate Finer Foods, 1600 W. Campbell St.; Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream, 5 E. Campbell St.; and Harris Pharmacy, 20 S. Dunton Ave.

OTHERS ARE Jewel, 50 W. Golf Rd.; Eagle Discount Supermarket, 1800 W. Central Rd.; White Hen Pantry, 333 S. Arlington Heights Rd.; and Yankee Doodle Dandy restaurant, 208 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

A similar program has been underway in Rolling Meadows since 1973. It reportedly has been successful, but Mayor Roland J. Meyer said, "More coupons were bought than redeemed. For some reason the children didn't redeem them."

Harry O'Brien of the Rolling Meadows Chamber of Commerce could not be reached for comment.

Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan has asked parents to restrict their children's activity on Halloween to midafternoon to dusk.

He also suggested children attend "meet and treat" programs at parks and schools rather than participate in traditional "trick or treat" activities.

Children out on Halloween should, according to members of St. Edna's Women's Club, limit visits to daylight hours, be accompanied by an adult, accept only wrapped or sealed candy, wear facial makeup rather than vision-restricting masks and wear light-colored costumes decorated with reflective tape.

Dist. 23 OKs 60c tax hike vote

yers, Hendren said.

THE DISTRICT'S tax rate is now $2.51 per $100 of taxable property and will rise to $3.11 when the full 60-cent increase is levied.

The district would gain an additional $300,000 annually with the maximum tax rate.

Dist. 23 has been plagued by financial problems for the past decade. These have accelerated recently because of cutbacks in aid to education from the state, loss of state aid because of declining enrollment, and the effects of inflation.

Last April, the board cut $110,000 in items before approving a $2.62 million budget. In spite of those cuts, the district was forced to borrow as much money as legally allowed.

The cutbacks reduced but did not eliminate programs. They included elimination of a junior high English teacher, a first grade teacher, one of two librarians, a learning disabilities teacher, a kindergarten aide and the district's part-time gifted program coordinator. The district's physical education program, custodial staff and various supplies also were reduced.

WHEN THE CUTS were made the administration was predicting a $287,000 budget deficit by 1977-78 unless state aid increased, and board members warned that the April cuts might be "only a beginning."

Man burned in gas fire at tire dealer

Gasoline fumes pouring out of an empty gasoline storage tank in Arlington Heights ignited Wednesday afternoon, and a 30-year-old Midlothian man received second-degree burns, firefighters reported.

Firefighters said Huie McDonald was rushed to Northwest Community Hospital after fumes from an underground gasoline tank he was dismantling at the Firestone Tire dealer, 630 N. Northwest Hwy., caught fire.

Firefighters said McDonald suffered burns on his face and left hand. The fire went out before firefighters arrived.

Independent Democrats urge support for Carter

by TONI GINNETTI

An appeal for independent Democrats to support Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter over Eugene McCarthy was issued Wednesday by a group of Illinois independent Democrats, including State Representatives Eugenia Chapman of Arlington Heights and Richard Mugalian of Palatine, and U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, 10th.

The announcement by 23 Chicago, suburban and statewide independent Democratic leaders came in an attempt to stop independents from voting for McCarthy, a movement the leaders fear would mean a Republican victory in Illinois.

Former Chicago Ald. William Singer, leader of the group, told a press conference at Carter headquarters in Chicago that support for Carter from independents is critical to win in the state.

"Many of us have been supporters of Sen. McCarthy in the past and have great respect for his efforts," Singer said in a prepared statement. "But we also remember how anger and apathy in 1968 led to the election of Richard Nixon and eight years of Republican administrations in Washington. We do not want four or eight more years of Ford and Dole."

BOTH CARTER and President Ford have pointed to Illinois as a key state in the presidential race and polls show the two men running closely, with Carter slightly leading.

Pat Derian, deputy director for Carter's campaign, flew in from Georgia to attend Wednesday's press conference, an indication of the importance of the Illinois outcome to the Carter camp.

Singer said the independent leaders fear many voters "have not made up their minds or are leaning toward McCarthy or may stay home."

He said in a close race, a margin of even a few percentage points for a third party candidate could mean a victory for Ford.

"If our kind of people don't vote in the presidential race, that will be a vote for Ford and Dole," State Sen. Dawn Clark Netsch, Chicago, said.

WEDNESDAY'S announcement was aimed solely at the presidential race in Illinois. When questioned whether the group also would endorse Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael J. Howlett or others, Singer said the group had not agreed to endorse in other races.

Mrs. Chapman told The Herald, however, that she is supporting both Carter and Howlett, despite reports that the Chicago Democratic machine, which is strongly backing Howlett, is pressing to unseat Mrs. Chapman.

"I'm a practical politician," Mrs. Chapjan said. "I'm for Howlett, no queston about it." She added she "knows" there is machine support being put behind Joan Brennan of Elk Grove Village, who is also running as a Democratic candidate in the 3rd District, because "I haven't always voted the right way.

"I'm really a regular Democrat. But I'm oriented to issues. I don't need the Cook County Democratic Central Committee to tell me how to vote on issues for the suburbs," she said.

Mrs. Chapman said she was supporting Carter "not because McCarthy doesn't have a chance. I'm for Carter, period. For people who do have other choices, what we have to realize when we go to vote on Nov. 2 is that the choice is between Carter and Ford."

Arson chief's rehiring bid nixed

The Illinois Dept. of Personnel has turned down former chief arson investigator Gus Mazzone's bid for reinstatement.

The decision issued to Mazzone Tuesday came from State Personnel Director Nolan B. Jones more than a month after a hearing into the circumstances surrounding Mazzone's layoff.

Mazzone and his attorney, Steve Delanty of Palatine, said Wednesday they now will take the case to the Civil Service Commission.

Mazzone, 60, was dismissed from the arson bureau after Illinois Fire Marshal Robert G. Walsh and Harvey Johnson, director of the Illinois Dept. of Law Enforcement, ordered a reorganization of the 11-member bureau to eliminate Mazzone's position as of Aug. 17.

Mazzone has charged that the move was politically motivated to punish him for fighting attempts to use jobs in the bureau for patronage.

Delanty said Wednesday he will petition the Civil Service Commission for a hearing into the layoff. That action is expected by Nov. 3.

"Our allegations will be much broader in scope before the commission," Delanty said. If the commission also turns down the reinstatement request, Mazzone has said he will take the case to Cook County Circuit Court.

campaign," he observed.

The waitress came by to take the orders. Lindberg made sure to call her by name each time she stopped at the table. But if Sharon knew his, she didn't let it show. Neither did anyone else in the restaurant.

He ordered bacon and eggs while everyone else asked for steak.

"I get so tired of steak or chicken," Lindberg said.

He mentioned that he's lost 14 pounds from running across the state and missing meals during the campaign.

HE WEARS IT WELL. In fact, the strain only shows in his eyes; the skin is dark and slightly puffed below them.

Part of the problem, he said, is that his contacts have been giving him trouble. Another part of the problem is the rigors of the campaign.

"It kills my eyes," he confided.

His supper came, and Lindberg talked about how politicians have to relate to the public. Government has become too complicated, he said.

"They don't believe anything any more, so I have a credibility problem to begin with," he said.

HE TALKED ABOUT plans for after the election as though his election was decided. But he also discussed the coattails of James R. Thompson, the Republican gubernatorial candidate. Many Thompson votes are really anti-Daley votes, he said.

"I don't know how long his coattails are," he added, "and that's what worries me."

It was time to get to Mount Prospect someone said, and Lindberg got up to leave.

He had hardly touched his bacon and eggs.

Shall I make a candidate overconfident or be undecided and give a candidate a spark of hope?

The way we see it

Need better way to clear rolls

For Northwest suburbanites who were inconvenienced or perhaps even disenfranchised by the recent Cook County voter canvass, the message is plain — there has to be a better way to clear the voting rolls of ineligible voters.

The canvass on Oct. 5 was conducted in local precincts after the voter registration closed. Republican and Democratic election judges had to agree to sign an affidavit to rule someone off the registration rolls and then send that person notice so they could appeal the decision.

With any system of that kind, errors are bound to occur, and some voters received notice they had been ruled off the voter rolls when they were in fact still legally eligible to vote.

That was where problems arose. In order to appeal a decision, the voter had to appear in person on the following Monday or Tuesday before an appeals board either in the county building in Chicago or in several suburban locations.

The county clerk's office tried to make things easier for people who could not conveniently make a trip to Chicago by opening the suburban locations for appeals — something not required by law. However, there was too little advance notice on the suburban locations so their worth was diluted.

However, even if the voters had had several weeks notice of where to appeal their removal from the rolls, that would not have solved a more basic problem — people were required by state law to submit to a personal appearance during working hours in front of a government body in order to preserve their franchise.

There must be a better way to accomplish the needed goal of culling the voter rolls.

One suggested reform, proposed by officials in the county clerk's office, would be to allow challenged voters to swear to their legal status in front of a notary and mail the sworn statement to the clerk's office to restore themselves to the voter rolls.

That may not be the best solution to the problem, but it is certainly a place to start.

Because state law guides election officials in conducting the canvass, it is up to the Illinois General Assembly to find a solution to this problem.

Whatever they do, they should find a way to avoid imposing unnecessary hardship on voters who want to exercise their most important right.

The goal of any reform is clear. It should avoid imposing unnecessary hardships on citizens who want to exercise their most precious right — the right to vote.

Does survey really reflect peoples' views?

If the Hoffman Estates Park District is going to improve or even continue the level of its present services, it is going to have to find more money somewhere.

That was one of the major findings of a University of Illinois study on leisure services in Hoffman Estates. Few quarrel with the statement, least of all park officials.

So it's not too surprising to find a recommendation in the report that the district pass a referendum in the next two years to raise taxes or transfer its functions to the Village of Hoffman Estates, which can, because of home rule powers, raise those taxes without the electorate's approval.

What is surprising is that those involved in the study say the park board will have a difficult time getting voters to approve a referendum because board squabbles have resulted in a lack of public confidence.

The statement itself isn't surprising; it may be accurate.

What is surprising is that it has been made by professional consultants who failed to adequately prove their case.

How did the study group arrive at its conclusion? Generally, it was based on interviews with a group of 34 "public leaders" in the community.

There was no survey of the public at large; there is no effort to claim that the 34 "leaders" are a cross-section of the community.

We wonder: how does the study group know these 34 are in touch with the public sector? And isn't it possible that the 34, having a better look at the mechanics of government, may be more critical of the park board than is the general public.

Our concern, as mentioned earlier, isn't that the statement is necessarily inaccurate. It is that, in providing the official sanction of a professional study, the statement may prove to fulfill itself.

Next time public confidence is gauged in such an extensive study, it might be good to go to the public, not its perceived leaders, to determine its sentiment.

Marching band supporter doesn't like football running away with coverage

"Football," wherever you are, "we love you." You're always in our local papers, page after page. You tell us where you have been and where you are going, you have pictures of your team, your lineup, your top players and your winning scores.

"Marching bands," wherever you are, "we love you, too." You're rarely in our local papers, never page after page. You never tell us where you have been or where you are going. We haven't seen a picture of your band, your top sections, your band director or your winning scores.

If marching music is for you, then won't you attend "The Cavalcade of Bands" to be held at Conant High School, Hoffman Estates, on Saturday, Oct. 30, at 7:30 p.m. Approximately 10 marching bands from your local area and Southern Illinois will be in the competition.

We hope to see Paddock Publications or any other newspaper reporter, for that matter, taking pictures. Better yet, we want the pictures printed in a paper with page after page of this event.

"Football," may we once win.

Another way of discussing abortion

Some Catholics might be confused by the stress on the constitutional amendment against abortion in the current political campaigns. They may think that if they are against abortion they must also be against candidates who do not support the amendment.

This is not necessarily so.

A member of the theology department at the University of Notre Dame tells us that other avenues of resisting abortion remain open and that our credibility as a church depends on many of us taking them.

Father David Burrell wrote in The National Catholic Reporter recently that "the only viable counterpoint to a simple solution of abortion will be our concerned effort to create a caring community." He would prefer to see the creation of a caring community in every parish in the country to help distressed pregnant women by providing them a genuine alternative to abortion, a service similar to Birthright.

"The vitality we could exhibit by accepting this challenge to become a church would witness more eloquently than words to our insistance that life itself is a gift," according to this Holy Cross priest.

Father Burrell asked in additiion that Right-to-Lifers not measure his faith by their tactics. "For being a Catholic," he assured his readers, "admits of many approaches to law, to society and to humankind."

Buffalo Grove C.D. gets support

Our family appreciates and thanks God for the men and women in the fire and police departments.

But, what about the civilians that donate their time and at times money (possibly having to take a day off from their jobs in an emergency).

At the Mill Creek fire, Salvation Army and Civil Defense people were there, but no mention was made in the news. Comment at the scene was overheard "I'd heard of Civil Defense in the community but never knew just what they did."

Your paper as a news media of the community should advise the residents of just what services are available.

Certainly Civil Defense — being a voluntary service — needs all the exposure they can get.

I am surprised they haven't made a comment. Maybe more people would become interested in helping if they knew they were really needed.

Hoping somewhere along the line these people will get due credit for their efforts.

Mrs. Robert L. Rhoades

Pardon us. What was the question?

Through your contacts within the "media" can you advise us if we may expect another lusty article from "Playboy - Carter" regarding the advantages of "Changing Positions"?

The lighter side

Lunatic fringe is one of our best

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new but apparently already outdated Gallup Poll this week showed President Ford and Jimmy Carter running almost even.

Although the situation may have changed since the survey was taken, it illustrates why candidates must do more than cater to the large blocs of votes — big labor, big business, big minorities, etc.

In a truly close election, some tiny faction that ordinarily swings little weight politically could be the decisive factor.

One such group that bears close watching as election day draws nigh is the so-called lunatic fringe.

Thus far, strangely, none of the major polls has bothered to determine which way this small but highly opinionated bloc is leaning.

In an effort to fill that void, I've spent several days stalking the lunatic fringe with notepad and tape recorder. My findings in a moment. But first, a word about the difficulties of trying to take soundings along the periphery of the body politic.

For one thing, the lunatic fringe is badly fragmented. A voter who is on the lunatic fringe of one issue may be at or near the center on other issues. This schizoid tendency is incompatible with coherent opinion sampling.

Further clouding the picture is a reluctance on the part of many lunatic fringes to admit they are part of the lunatic fringe. In the absence of a saliva test, there is no scientific means of isolating and identifying fringe voters.

Within these limitations, however, there are several distinguishing traits that aid in recognition. Among the common characteristics are:

• MUTTERING. Voters on the manic edge of any given issue tend to talk under their breath a lot. At nearly every campaign rally, part of the crowd will be mumbling to itself all during the candidate's speech. This usually is the lunatic fringe.

• DECALS. Unlike the main segment of the body politic, which goes in strongly for political bumperstickers, lunatic fringers tend to stick decals on their windshields. Or, if they don't have autos, they stick decals on their sunglasses.

• SHOES. Above the ankles, lunatic fringers dress pretty much like everyone else. But their footwear gives them away. Almost invariably, they wear shoes that are compately inappropriate for the occasion. Deck shoes at formal weddings, hiking boots at yacht parties, etc.

So much for recognition factors. Now to the meat of my survey on the two main issues of the campaign.

On the lust issue raised by Playboy's interview with Carter, the lunatic fringe will support any candidate who promises to refrain from premarital and extramarital interviews.

On the racial joke issue raised by Earl Butz, the lunatic fringe favors a return to the "little moron" jokes of the 1940s.

4% GNP boost a healthy sign: businessmen

by LEA TONKIN

Recent U.S. Commerce Dept. figures showing a modest increase in the nation's output of goods and services during the third quarter of the year is below the 5 per cent increase predicted earlier by administration economists.

Three area business representatives, however, view the 4 per cent gross national product increase announced Tuesday as a healthy sign for consumers and industry.

"I would think the administration would perceive it as a very healthy sign," said Bill Bayuk, vice president and investment officer at the Bank of Elk Grove in Elk Grove Village. Bayuk Wednesday said moderate GNP growth will mean fewer price hikes for industry and consumers, with rapid economic expansion.

BAYUK SAID President Ford has "done a hell of a lot" to improve the U.S. economic outlook and that Americans eventually may have to accept a 6 per cent average inflation rate, rather than a 5 per cent rate.

The investment counselor said, "We're going to have to be prepared to live with a somewhat higher level of unemployment." A 6 per cent unemployment rate is more realistic than a 4 per cent level, he said.

Bayuk said the Nov. 2 election will not sway his economic growth forecast for the next several months.

"Being fundamentally paranoid on inflation, I think a Ford victory would be less inflationary than a Carter victory," he said of long range trends.

He said governmental spending to create new jobs could lead to renewed inflationary pressures and higher prices. He does not expect a dramatic reduction in unemployment during the next several months.

Raymond Western, president of the Sales & Marketing Executives Assn. of Chicago, said members of the Rolling Meadows-based organization report increased sales and marketing activity.

ACTIVE RECRUITING for new personnel and expanded promotional campaigns are reported for hotels and motels and many other types of Chicago area businesses, he said. Western is employed at the A. L. Randall Co. in Chicago, distributors of glassware and other items.

Sales and marketing departments generally "are one of the first departments to be hit by a cutback," Western said. "But I see a renewed vigor in this area."

The drop in the annual GNP increase rate from 4.5 per cent in the spring quarter and 9.2 per cent in the first quarter of 1976 has been accompanied by increased Chicago area business activity, he said.

"Business prospects are good and they will continue to be good in 1977," said Thomas Reid, a Prospect Heights resident who serves as public affairs director for Illinois Manufacturers Assn. The GNP fluctuation "means we're still growing, though the rate has slowed," he said.

"THERE IS PLENTY of money available for loans. Consumer confidence as indicated by recent surveys is high and is growing," Reid said. He predicts increased consumer purchases of automobiles, appliances and other goods.

Reid agreed with Bayuk that the national elections will have no immediate impact on the U.S. economy. However, increased government spending can lead to rising inflation during 1978 and 1979, he said.

Sears agrees to end bait-switch

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has accepted a consent agreement effective today that bars Chicago-based Sears, Roebuck & Co.'s use of "bait and switch" advertising to sell major home appliances. In the complaint handled by the commission's Chicago office, Sears was charged with running ads for sewing machines, washers and other items that were not bona fide offers to sell. The commission said the ads attracted prospective customers to Sears stores, where sales personnel "talked down" the sale items and attempted to sell higher-priced models. The consent agreement requires that Sears make only bona fide appliance sale offers, order sufficient quantities of advertised items to meet normal demands and clearly state in all printed ads that the product is available for sale. Downgrading appliances, the use of displays that make appliances seem defective and misleading comparisons between various appliances are prohibited by the agreement. Arthur M. Wood, Sears chairman and chief executive officer, said the company will "vigorously enforce" the consent agreement. "The incidents which came to light in the recent FTC hearings were violations of Sears policy as well as FTC standards," Woods said. "We regret that even one such case occurred in our annual transactions of some 9.5 million major home appliances."

Post office overcharging alleged

Downstate post offices overcharge customers 27 per cent of the time, costing the public an extra 3.7 per cent in postage, Illinois Consumer Advocate Celia Maloney said Wednesday. Mrs. Maloney said her investigators' findings are similar to ones obtained during an earlier survey of Chicago post offices. "There is no evidence of deliberate fraud and I am not contending there is fraud. It's my belief that the problem is simply one of not keeping the post office scales in proper working order."

Ford clears two local contracts

The Ford Motor Co. Wednesday reached tentative agreement with United Auto Workers Local 325 on the issues preventing reopening of the Ford plant in suburban Hazelwood near St. Louis. Ford Motor Co. announced agreement on a new local contract for 2,300 workers at its Nashville, Tenn., glass plant whose continued shutdown threatened to cripple the automaker's recovery from a 28-day strike. The agreement with United Auto Workers Local 737 was the 92nd and left just seven bargaining units without local contracts to supplement the national pact that the 170,000 workers ratified last Tuesday. UAW Vice President Douglas A. Fraser said Tuesday that the union won't select either General Motors or Chrysler Corp. as its next contract target until "the situation clarifies at Ford."

UPS strike backs up mail in East

The Postal Service is preparing for an extraordinary crush of Christmas package mail if negotiations remain deadlocked in a five-week-old regional United Parcel Service strike, an official said Wednesday. The UPS is the Postal Service's biggest bulk mail competitor and the strike already has doubled parcel volume in the strike area covering 15 eastern states. Deputy Postmaster Gen. William F. Bolger said the Postal Service is using standby lease facilities and already has ordered overtime and extra shifts.

Market rallies despite uncertainty

NEW YORK — An afternoon rally in blue-chip stocks, triggered by some surprisingly good earnings reports, pushed prices higher Wednesday in slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange despite numerous investor uncertainties.

The Dow Jones industrial average, off more than three points at one time, rallied to gain 4.90 points to 954.87. In the past four sessions, the blue-chip average has gained 18.97 points.

The NYSE common stock index gained 0.15 to 54.33 and the average price of a common share increased 9 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter shares, gained 0.29 to 101.74.

Advances topped declines, 776 to 586, among 1,875 issues crossing the tape. However, the 513 unchanged issues reflected considerable investor uncertainty about the economy, inflation and the presidential election.

So did the volume, which totaled only 15,860,000 shares, down from the 16,200,000 traded Tuesday. The turnover indicated investors were bargain hunting following the market's recent plunge in which the Dow average fell more than 80 points.

Delay in Series brings talk about greatest team ever

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sparky Anderson won't come right out and say it himself, but it's clear he believes his Cincinnati Reds, a game away from a second straight world championship are baseball's greatest team.

What Anderson would like is for other people to start saying it for him.

"I would like to win this in four games for one reason," the Cincinnati manager said Wednesday shortly after the scheduled fourth World Series game against the New York Yankees was postponed by rain.

"And that's so you people can sit down and ask — are they as good as the old Dodgers and Yankees teams? You're the ones who'll have to answer that. I can't."

The rainout caused no changes in the scheduled fourth game pitching plans.

The Reds, who lead the New York Yankees three games to none in their attempt to become the first National League team in more than a half-century to win back-to-back world series, will send right-hander Gary Nolan against right-handed Ed Figueroa Thursday night at 7:30 p.m.

Billy Martin, the Yankees' manager, failed to appear at Wednesday's scheduled news conference. "I don't know what became of him," said Gabe Paul, the Yankees' president who served as a stand-in for Martin. "I don't know where he is."

Although Anderson would not compare his current team with great clubs of the past which he did not see, the white-haired 42-year-old manager, in response to a question, gave a position-by-position comparison of the Reds with the mid-1950s Brooklyn Dodgers. He broke in with the Dodgers' organization during that period, when they were winning four National League pennants and one world championship in five years shortly before moving to Los Angeles.

And, not surprisingly, except for pitching, Anderson gave his current team an edge over those last Brooklyn champions at just about every position. The only clear edge he conceded was in center field, where he said Duke Snider's power gave him an advantage over the Cincinnati center fielder, Cesar Geronimo.

Someone questioned choosing Joe Morgan over Jackie Robinson at second base, and Anderson said "He's been the finest offensisve player in the game the last five seasons."

"I give Morgan a big edge over Robinson," Anderson said. He pointed out that Robinson had the advantage of playing in the National League before many of the clubs moved to new and bigger ballparks, and said, "the player today, if he isn't better than the player 25 years ago, then I'm gonna quit, because everything else has gotten better."

Anderson also said his club would be running right from the start on the Yankee outfielders in game four because "if they have to throw, I honestly think they have problems," he said.

The weakness of the Yankees' outfielders' arms is well-known.

Cincinnati is attempting to become the first National League team since the New York Giants of 1921-22 to win successive world championships.

The Reds are also trying to become the first NL club since the 1963 Los Angeles Dodgers to sweep a series in four games. The victims in all three of those years were the Yankees.

ABA squads add strength to Midwest

by TRACY RINGOLSBY

With the death of the American Basketball Assoc. came the rebirth of the National Basketball Assoc's Midwest Division.

The Midwest, which for several years had become known as the toughest division in the NBA, fell upon hard times in 1975-76. Milwaukee won the division title — if it can be called winning — with a dismal 38-44 record, and Chicago, Kansas City and Detroit owned the NBA's worst, third worst and fourth worst records respectively.

When the ABA folded and four of its former members joined the NBA, the Midwest Division was given new life. Denver, which has won more than 60 games each of the last two seasons, was thrown into the Midwest along with Indiana, a perennial ABA challenger.

But more importantly, the Midwest teams seemed to benefit from the acquisition of the ABA players who were left over from the teams which were buried along with the nine-year-old league.

Milwaukee got center Swen Nater, a tempermental type who led the ABA in rebounding with San Antonio his first year and since has spent time with New York and Virginia. Detroit picked up forwards Marvin Barnes and M.L. Carr from St. Louis.

Chicago, which opens the season Friday night at Cleveland, got 7-2 center Artis Gilmore. And Kansas City molded itself a new backcourt, picking up guard Ron Boone in the dispersal draft from St. Louis and trading Nate Archibald to the New York Nets for Brian Taylor, backup center Jim Eakins and two first round draft choices.

The Nuggets spent their offseason trying to strengthen their backcourt. In the ABA playoffs, the New York Nets' guards battered Denver and that was a major factor in the Nuggets' finishing as runners-up.

Coach Larry Brown has acquired defensive-battler Fatty Taylor from the defunct ABA Virginia franchise and Ted McClain from New York. One of them will hopefully supply defense and playmaking to go along with the shooting and rebounding of all-ABA guard Ralph Simpson.

The Nuggets are strong up front with jumping-jack David Thompson readying for his second year and always hustling Bobby Jones heading into his third year at forward. Marvin Webster, nicknamed the "Human Eraser" in college because of his shot blocking, is trying to recover from a kidney disease which hindered him all last year and will give 6-9 Dan Issel some help at center.

Kansas City could be the surprise. Upset with last year's 31-51 record, the Kings got rid of three starters — forward Larry McNeil and Archibald were sent to the New York Nets and guard Jimmy Walker was waived.

The Kings are ready to go with rookie Richard Washington, their first-round pick from UCLA, at forward; and Boone, a 50 per cent shooter, and Taylor, a defensive playmaker, at guards. Back from the past are center Sam Lacey and forward Scott Wedman.

If Milwaukee ever gets healed it could return to the top of the division but right now, it is a question of how long power forward David Meyers will be out with a knee injury — at least until November — and when rookie guard Quinn Buckner will catch up on the work he lost while nursing a minor injury the opening weeks of training camp.

Elmore Smith will start at center but Nater may see more and more playing time as the season progresses. Bob Dandridge has the forward spot opposite Meyers sewed up and coach Larry Costello just hopes he can find something to do with the other side of the frontcourt while Meyers heals. Buckner hopefully will become the playmaker the Bucks have been looking for the past few years to help Brian Winters live up to his offensive potential.

In Detroit, they are hoping center Bob Lanier can calm down Barnes, who has become as famous for his off-court actions as his playing ability. If Lanier can handle Barnes and if the strong center actually patched up differences with coach Herb Brown, the Pistons may finally live up to the expectations of their fans.

Indiana has lost center Len Elmore until at least the end of January with a knee injury and guard Kevin Joyce is out for several months with knee problems too. Billy Knight was one of the premiere forwards in the ABA and coach Bobby Leonard hopes Knight can continue to produce in the older league. With Joyce out and veteran Billy Keller retired, defensive-minded Don Buse and former Kentucky star Mike Flynn appear to have inherited the backcourt jobs.

Gilmore, who has a multi-million dollar contract with the Bulls, is expected to make Ed Badger's transition from an assistant coach to head man an easy one.

Now, the Bulls just need to find a guard to replace the injured Jerry Sloan and hope the mononucleosis which will force top draft pick Scott May to miss at least the first 10 games hasn't stolen too much strength from the former Indiana All-America and college Player of the Year.

Mustang archers lead suburbs...

by PAUL LOGAN

Four Herald area teams will be contending for the top three spots in the first state archery meet for girls, starting Friday at Normal.

Rolling Meadows, Prospect and Arlington of the Mid-Suburban League and Maine West of the Central Suburban South had team scores that ranked in the top eight after last Saturday's district meets. All the teams are driving downstate today.

Figuring to give these strong suburban teams plenty of competition will be downstate Freeburg. It registered a 2492 in district play, second only to Rolling Meadows. (See more about Freeburg elsewhere on the page.)

The Meadows Mustangs won at the toughest district in the state — Maine West — with a 2508. Prospect was second (2435) and Maine West was third (2365). West qualified as a team by placing four individuals in the top five. Earlier it had been reported that they could only compete as individuals.

"I was relieved,," said Maine coach Connie Bauman upon learning the good news. "Our scores were high enough to win all the other districts in the suburbs. We'll challenge rospect, but I don't think anybody can catch Rolling Meadows."

Although they're only a first-year team, the Mustangs have won every event they've entered this year.

"There's only one non-believer anymore and that's Freeburg," said Meadows coach Ken Bates. "We only have to prove ourselves one more time this year."

"We need to have everybody on the team in the 600s to finish second in the state or first . . . if we have angels on our shoulders," said Prospect coach Sandy Pifer.

"I was real pleased at how well we did (in the disrict), especially Carol's (Hoeckelberg) effort. It was her high for the season."

Hoeckelberg led Prospect with a 632. Only Meadows' Maria Recker was higher at 665 — tops in the state. Other Mustangs that figure to do well at the finals are Nancy Namovicz (628), Rhonda Ragan

...Tiny Freeburg also state power

by PAUL LOGAN

Few if any suburban sports fans have ever heard of Freeburg, Ill.

Located six miles south of Belleville, this downstate town of 2500 souls hasn't been on the state sports map in 20 years.

Back in 1956, the high school's baseball team finished second to the largest boys' school in the state — Lane Tech — by a 5-3 score.

This school of about 600 students hasn't had a contender in any sport since . . . until now. Under the coaching of Mary Ann Downen, Freeburg has become a downstate powerhouse in archery.

Downen's team scored 2492 points in district play last weekend, second only to Rolling Meadows' 2508.

If the Freeburg Midgets can upset the Mustangs, it will be a big thing for the town, according to Downen.

"Having won the GAA Postal Meet (a big archery meet before the state meet was added) a couple of years ago, there are some people that think we're going to win this one, too," said Downen. "But we're going to meet competition like we've never seen before."

Downen, the only full-time woman PE teacher at Freeburg, is concerned that her girls might be psyched out at this inaugural state meet by the suburban girls' high-priced equipment.

"We've been told that there are (suburban) indoor shooting ranges that are longer than 20 yards," said Downen. "We have fiberglass wood-laminated bows, but we don't use balancers or any of those things. When we see all their sophisticated equipment we can't let it shake us."

The Midgets' coach said her team was "really nervous" Saturday because so much was riding on them earning a berth to the state tournament. "It was different than all the duals and invitationals we've been in in the past."

Still, they beat out Red Bud, which scored a respectable 2286 — sixth best in the state — for their 52nd straight win. They have never lost in four years

Larry Monroe waits for eye surgery verdict

by BOB GALLAS

White Sox pitcher Larry Monroe, who underwent eye surgery last week to correct a vision problem due to a childhood accident, is back in his Mount Prospect home, but says it's still too early to tell if the operation was a success.

"I can see better out of the eye, but unless it's good enough to work again with the other eye, it won't make much difference," said the big right-hander.

Monroe lost most of the vision in his right eye 10 years ago when a B-B gun accidentally discharged and his eye was hit. Monroe, nevertheless, went on to an outstanding career in athletics and was the No. 1 pick of the White Sox in 1974 when he graduated from Forest View High School.

"It's never bothered me. Once you adjust to using one eye you can see almost as well as if you had two. Maybe the field of vision isn't as good," he said.

Monroe said he's been under a doctor's care for nine years because of the eye, but that the decision to operate was a "last minute thing."

"I was going to play winter ball, then decided not to. The operation was high risk for a long time but lately they've come up with a new procedure," said Monroe. "The doctor said I had nothing to lose by giving it a try."

Monroe has taken a lot of good natured kidding from his White Sox teammates because of the eye, which doesn't focus in harmony with his left eye.

"They called me 'One-Eye, or when I'd voice an opinion on something they'd say, "what do you know, Monroe, you can't see anyway.' "

Most of the scouts who followed Monroe's progress through a four-year varsity career in baseball at Forest View were aware of Monroe's eye problems, but that didn't affect their interest.

"I knew they were going to sign me if I was good enough and nothing else mattered. The Sox didn't even bring it

WHITE SOX rookie Larry Monroe relaxes at his home after eye surgery. The 20-year-old right-hander from Mount Prospect is a promising major league pitcher.

Menely resigns from Fremd position

by ART MUGALIAN

Fremd cross-country coach Ron Menely has resigned his position at the school effective immediately, according to principal Tom Howard.

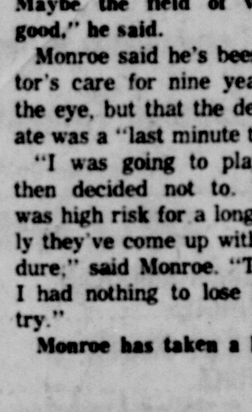
In making the announcement Wednesday, Howard said that Menely was quitting for "personal reasons."

One of the most successful coaches in the state, Menely took over when Fremd opened 11 years ago and led his 1969 team to the IHSA state championship. He was also a physical-education and driver training instructor.

Howard said assistant coach Roy Hascup would take over the varsity coaching duties for the remainder of the season. Fremd's team, ranked No. 1 in the state by the Timely Times, will defend its Mid-Suburban League title Saturday.

Reached at home late Wednesday afternoon, Meneley cited "irresolvable conflicts" as the reason for his resignation.

"This was a very difficult thing for me to do," said Menely, who received his master's degree in education from Northern Illinois University in 1966 following his undergraduate work at Bradley.



Ron Menely

"There were irresolvable conflicts that had to be worked out and unfortunately this was the only way to do it," he said. "This will be in the best interests of all concerned."

Menely also said he wished to thank the parents, athletes and coaches who had supported him through the years.

Menely was a member of the IHSA cross-country advisory board and is well respected among the state's harrier coaches.

Including the state title in 1969, Fremd's teams have finished in the top four in Illinois on four different occasions. The Vikings have won four straight MSL titles and are currently working on a string of 38 consecutive dual-meet victories.

Crawford, Rader in first baseball swap

NEW YORK — The San Francisco Giants and St. Louis Cardinals took advantage of a rainy day postponement in the World Series Wednesday to announce a six-player deal in which catcher Dave Rader and outfielder Willie Crawford were the key figures. It was the first major league trade since the baseball season ended Oct. 3.

Along with Rader, pitchers Mike Caldwell and John D'Acquisto went to the Cardinals while pitcher John Curtis and switch-hitting infielder-outfielder Vic Harris came to the Giants along with Crawford.

The 27-year-old Rader's batting average slumped to 2.63 in 88 games with one home run and 22 runs batted in last season for the Giants. The lefthanded hitter batted .291 in both 1974 and 1975.

Crawford, 30, hit .304 in 120 games with nine homers and 50 RBI in 1976, his first with the Cardinals who obtained him from the Los Angeles Dodgers for Ted Sizemore. The 13-year veteran, who bats and throws lefthanded, had his best years for the Dodgers in 1973 and 1974, batting .295 each time.

Celtics obtain Rowe for front line

BOSTON — The NBA champion Boston Celtics Wednesday sent rebounding wizard Paul Silas to the Denver Nuggets in a three-way deal that brought them the Detroit Pistons' all-star forward Curtis Rowe. The Nuggets sent Detroit guard Ralph Simpson to get Silas, who was unable to reach a contract agreement with the Celtics after a month-long holdout.

Rowe, who averaged 16 points and nine rebounds a game with the Pistons last year, played at UCLA with another Boston newcomer, Sidney Wicks. The two, combining with center Dave Cowens and veteran all-star forward John Havlicek, give the Celtics one of the most impressive front lines in the history of the game.

Boston loses battle to bench Orr

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Wednesday rejected an emergency appeal by the Boston Bruins seeking an immediate restraining order to prevent defenseman Bobby Orr from playing with the Chicago Black Hawks.

The case will come up again in a hearing Monday before District Judge Joseph Sam Perry on Boston's request for a preliminary injunction against Orr and the Black Hawks. Earlier the Bruins had filed a suit for a restraining order in federal court in Boston.

Wednesday's action stemmed from a brief filed Monday by attorneys for the Bruins seeking immediate action. Arthur Morse, attorney for Orr and the Black Hawks, filed an answer to the brief Tuesday. Orr was not able to play with the Hawks Tuesday night at Cleveland nor was he expected to be ready for a game Thursday at Philadelphia because of swelling in his knees.

Sox ordered to reimburse Tanner

NEW YORK — American League President Lee MacPahil Wednesday ordered the White Sox to reimburse former Manager Chuck Tanner the difference between the $60,000 his contract calls for and the actual amount he was paid this season as pilot of the Oakland A's.

Tanner, who signed a multi-year contract with the White Sox two years ago, was released from his managerial duties when Bill Veeck bought the team last winter but was retained as an advisor. It was then that Oakland owner Charles O. Finley signed Tanner to manage his club for $25,000 with the assumption that the White Sox pay the $35,000 difference.

Although Veeck must now pay that difference, MacPhail released the White Sox from any obligation regarding the remaining two years of Tanner's contract. MacPahil also asked the A's and Tanner to renegotiate salary terms for those two years.

It is known that the Pittsburgh Pirates would like to hire Tanner, a native of New Castle, Pa., as their manager for next year, but are waiting for Finley to release him from the remaining two years of that contract.

Diving competition begins

Preliminary diving competition of the Mid-Suburban League girls swimming meet begins at 4:30 p.m. today as Arlington's Kelly Holland will be gunning for her third straight conference diving crown.

The top 12 finishers of today's competition at Buffalo Grove High School, will compete in the finals in Saturday's conference swimming meet, which will begin at 9 a.m. at Buffalo Grove.

Holland has won the conference diving title in both of the years the league has offered girls swimming. Last year, she won with a record 316.55 points.

Arlington will be a threat to take the top three spots in diving this year, which could help the Cards win the conference meet.

Arlington sophomores Donna Wasielewski, who finished second last year, and Kim Bornman, who took fifth, are both back this year. Wasielewski currently ranks second in conference and third in state with a best score of 216.20. Bornman ranks third in conference and fourth in state with a best season score of 207.40.

Holland, who has never been beaten in conference competition, leads the state in diving with a best season score of 247.85.

up until after they'd signed me."

The operation involved removing a membrane that had grown over the eye since it was hurt in 1967. "The membrane just kept getting thicker and thicker," said Monroe.

Monroe goes back to the doctor today to get his eye examined.

"I'll know better then on how it's coming along," he said.

Monroe will be watching the major league draft scheduled for early next month, although he figures to be one of the pitchers the Sox will protect.

"I heard that Seattle will be going for established players while Toronto will be going for youth. I don't know if they'd be interested in me. I haven't really proven myself up here."

But it's just a matter of time before the 20-year-old rookie "proves himself." So the Sox probably won't take any chances.

The White Sox hierarchy is high on the youngster, who looks every bit like a major league prospect.

And next season, he may be looking even better.

Maine is led by Robin Gulder (623) and Sharon Vaughn (610).

Arlington finished second to hosting Glenbrook North, but Coach Linda Angeloff is "optimistic about this weekend . . . We're due to have a good meet.

"I think the Mid-Suburban could have a clean sweep in state," said Angeloff. "There will be a battle between us and Prospect again."

Only one Arlington girl — Jennifer Krock with 580 — come close to what Angeloff expected — around the 600 mark.

One Hersey girl who was way above the magic number was Corinne Frank. She scored a 622 for runner-up medalist honors. Frank would have taken first place had not an arrow rebounded from the 10-point circle, giving her an automatic seven.

"It was her first rebound this season," said Hersey coach Cheryl Wilcox. "It was just one of those freaky things that happen."

Frank will be among 10 area girls competing as individuals in the state meet. Fremd's Laura Weber was the only other girl to go over the 600 mark with a 610. They'll all be trying to win one of the top 10 medals in the Saturday morning finale.

of competition.

"I don't think our girls are what you call cocky," said Downen. "They are very serious. They don't want to do anything to blow it."

Archery is a big girls' sport at Freeburg because of the school's success and because there are only two others — volleyball and track. Most suburban schools have three times that many sports for girls.

Freeburg has a large archery team — 34. Of those, 14 have shot 600 or better this year — an amazing total. Of her first five, four are seniors who have been winners their entire career. All five are averaging over 600 this season.

It's the perfect showdown — evenly matched teams from the country (Freeburg) and the city (Rolling Meadows). Neither school has ever won a state title and both want the championship in the worst way.

Rolling Meadows coach Ken Bates summed it up for both coaches:

"It may not be the biggest state title in the state, but for us it's a real feather in our cap, believe me."

Corinne Frank, just missed district title

Meadows, Fremd post soccer wins

Rolling Meadows upped their winning streak and Fremd started in on a new one in Mid-Suburban League soccer action Wednesday.

Ted Theofanous accounted for the only scoring as the Mustangs nipped Hoffman Estates, 1-0. Halfback Steve Todd threw in to Theofanous, who dribbled once and then drilled home a 20-footer. It was the only shot of 15 by Meadows to make it into the Hawk net.

Mustang goalie Mike Zimmerman in the meantime fended off a dozen Hoffman shots to notch the shutout as his team won their third straight and fourth in their last five outings. Meadows is 5-6 over-all.

The Vikings, after losing for the first time this fall at Lake Forest, rebounded with a 4-1 triumph over Wheeling with Jerry Norys participating in all Vike scoring plays.

Norys assisted on goals by Jeff Randall and Kurt Blechner and scored twice while Randall and John Setley assisted. The Wildcat score was recorded by Rainer Engelmann.

Fremd never trailed in the contest while upping their record for the season to 10-1-1. They also outshot the 'Cats 24-10.

The defensive unit limited Hoffman to 113 total offensive yards and was anchored by the hard hitting of Pat Mulvihill, Andy Johnson, Mark Murphy, Pat Doran, and Stan Anderson. Anderson led the team with 11 solo tackles.

Pee Wee Bills Black 25, Pee Wee Bills Gold 0

In a battle of the top Pee Wee teams in the Tri County League, the Bills Black topped the Bills Gold 25-0 at Buffalo Grove H.S. Saturday. Tellschow went over from the 11 yard line early in the opening quarter and then caught a 42 yard pass from QB Doug Nelson mid-way in the second quarter. Nelson also tossed a 14 yarder to right end Jeff Peterson as the Bills moved to a 19-0 half time lead. Team leading scorer Jeff Albrecht swept the left side of the line in the third quarter and went over from 23 yards out.

Bills Widgets 14, Lombard Grizzlies 6

The Bills shook off a slow start and topped the Lombard Grizzlies 14-6 in the cold Saturday at Buffalo Grove High School. QB Joe Molloy went in from three yards away late in the first quarter as the Bills led at half 7-6. In the third quarter, back Mike Kozemzak scored from the 11. The defense limited the Grizzlies to six first downs from the hard hitting play of Kevin Luthringshausen, Scott Ringel, Wade Light, Dean Kuller, and Molloy.

Bills Heavyweights 19, Cary Grove Trojans 12 (ot)

The Bills shook off a lackluster first half to tie the game in regulation play 12-12 and then proceed to a 19-12 win over the Cary Grove Trojans in overtime. The Bills struck early after a bad Cary punt and marched in from the 22 yard line in 6 plays with QB Phil Menzel going over from the three.

Late in the final quarter the Bills went 40 yards in 9 plays on key passes from QB Gregg Bowen to ends Dave Horworka and Paul Heesch. Finally Tom Zelen swept the left side from the 5 to tie the game.

In overtime it was all Bills as Jeff Berg scored on a recovered fumble on the second play. The extra point was good on a pass from QB Bowen to flanker Darrell Andre. The Bills defensive team held Cary thanks to outstanding performances by Doug Nelson, Dave Horoworka, Joe Furmanski, and Berg.

Pee Wee Red 34, Addison Cowboys 24

End Donnie Triplett caught 7 passes for 114 total yards to lead the Bills passing attack.

Bills Lightweights 26, Cary Grove Trojans 0

In a battle of the best two teams (both unbeaten with 5-0-0) in the Tri County Lightweight Division, the Bills proved why this year's 1976 edtion of Bills Lightweghts could very well be the best team in league history.

The Bills crushed Cary Grove 26-0 behind the two TD performance of league standout Jeff Albrecht. Albrecht was close to sensational as he rushed for 123 yards. And along with running back Steve Frederiksen, the pair gained a total of over 200 yards.

The defense was equally impressive, scoring two TD's. The first came when linebacker Doug Nelson picked up a Cary fumble and raced 36 yards untouched into the end zone. And linebacker Larry Tellschow picked off a Cary aerial and went in from the 41.

Rod Haslam was outstanding from the defensive line as was the defensive play of Dave Gherardini, Bob Veternik, Hofmeister, Nelson, Tellschow, Albrecht, and Steve Frederiksen.

Fading farms

New housing business developments continue to eat away at area farmland

by LEA TONKIN

For years, the pressures of new housing and business development have marked the decline of local farming.

It's a transition repeated in major metropolitan areas across the U.S., said soil conservationist Steven Hollister of the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District, Lake Zurich.

Hollister predicts the problem of maintaining open space, flood control programs and an awareness of land use planning will eventually underscore the need to preserve remaining farm lands.

A recent U.S. Dept. of Commerce report on Cook County farm product sales and land use changes between 1969-1974 shows the total farm acreage declined 11 per cent, while the number of farms rose 13 per cent. A 10 per cent drop in harvested cropland and a 32 per cent increase in the value of agricultural products sold by the county's 808 farms are shown in the report.

HOLLISTER SAID the county's farm land area will continue to shrink, as predicted in a study prepared for the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago and the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service. In the Chicago metropolitan area river basin study, residential land use is projected at 25.7 per cent of the total land area by the year 2000 compared to 19.8 per cent in 1970.

Meanwhile, the agricultural, idle and forest lands will drop from 55.9 per cent of the land area to a projected 31.5 per cent. Acreage in the second category will decline from 430,000 acres to approximately 230,000 acres, the study predicts.

"The trend will mean additional planning for flood control," Hollister said. Control of erosion and other problems related to new development will mark the conversion of farmland to housing projects and shopping centers.

"Very basically, you get down to zoning and land use planning," Hollister said. The preservation of farming as a valid land use will become a problem as the open space problem becomes more acute, he said. Tax breaks and other incentives may be required to maintain a viable farming community in the metropolitan area, he said.

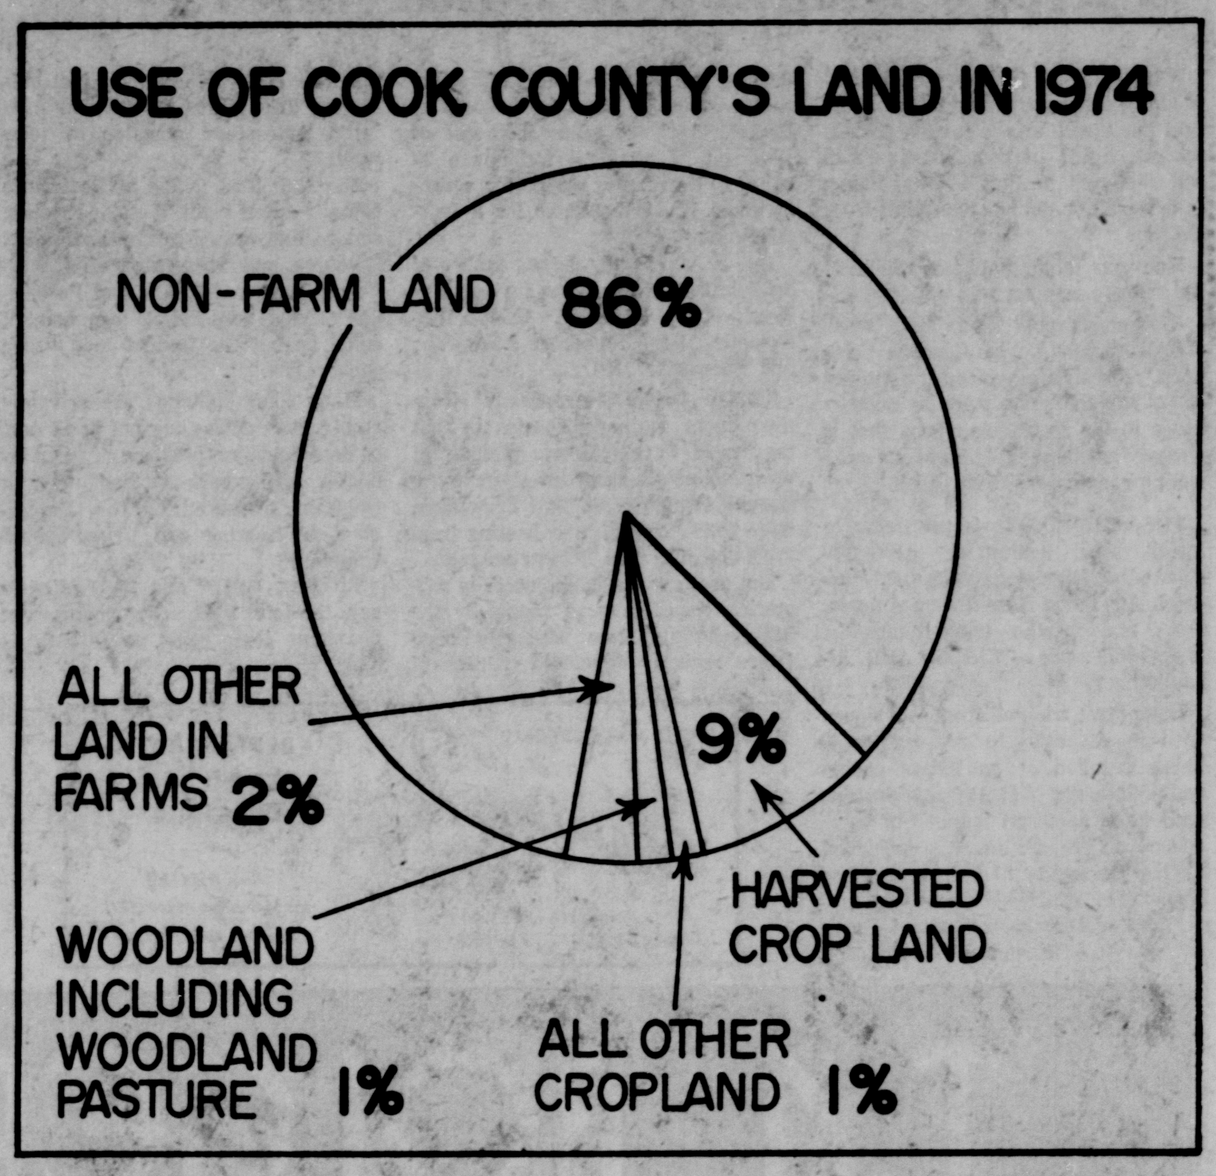
SKYROCKETING LAND values discourage new farming ventures, Hollister noted. Although land can be acquired, the high price will hurt a farmer's ability to make a profit. Hollister noted the surge of newcomers in the local farming business includes many residents who buy property to raise horses or carry on other limited farming activities.

The U.S. Dept. of Commerce report on Cook County farm land use shows the value of all agricultural products sold by the 808 farms in 1974 amounted to $22,971,000. A farm is defined as agricultural operations for which annual sales would normally amount to $250 for farms of less than 10 acres or $50 for places of 10 acres or more.

Farms with sales of $2,500 or more accounted for $22,351,000 of the county's agricultural product sales in 1974 and $17,075,000 of sales in 1969. There were 491 of these farms in 1974 compared to 470 in 1969. Of these operations, average size decreased from 173 acres to 145 acres during the period. The value per acre rose from $2,104 to $2,560 raising the average farm value from $363,412 to $370,923.

The market value of livestock and their products on Cook County farms with $2,500 or more in sales was $1,555,000 in 1974. Poultry and their products were valued at $127,000 and crop sales for hay and forest products were valued at $20,669,000.

The Commerce Dept. report shows 85,544 acres of Cook County farm land in 1974 compared to 92,883 acres in 1969. The average farm size dropped during the period from 130 acres to 102 acres.



Looking for a new house? Start your shopping now

If you're in the market for a house, the next five months might be the best time to shop. Not just because prices are likely to increase the longer you wait — which is true — but because you're likely to get the least competition from other shoppers during that period.

At least that's the pattern of home sales last year and, in the judgment of at least one real estate executive, that's about the way it happens every year.

"In 1975 our slowest period of sales occurred between October and February," reported Robert G. Walters, senior vice president of Baird & Warner and general manager of the company's residential sales division, which has a network of 30 Chicago and suburban sales offices.

"IN THAT SPAN our monthly sales ranged from a low of 5.51 per cent of our total sales for the year to 7.98 per cent, which comes to an average of 6.53 per cent in each of those fall and winter months," he said.

Those percentages translate to an average of 284 homes sold in each of those five months. In 1975 Baird & Warner had 4,354 sales participations for $251,950,791.

In comparison, the peak sales period, according to last year's chart, is from March to August when an average of 9.78 per cent of the annual total is sold each month. That converts to an average of 425 homes sold in each of those months.

The ideal time for shopping actually runs from August through January, Walters said.

"It generally takes 30 to 60 days to shop around, pick the home you like, make an offer, and sign a contract. So if you want to predict when the competition from other shoppers is least you'd actually want to subtract 30 to 60 days from when the homes are actually sold to calculate when they are being shopped," Walters suggested.

THE BAIRD & WARNER executive explained that while inclement weather and winter holidays (Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year) tend to diminish house-hunting or even putting homes up for sale, those are not the most significant factors.

"The main reason that people try to time home purchases and sales to late spring and early summer is to avoid disruption to children in school. Even most corporate transfers are attuned to this timing," said Walters. He noted that a 20-year study of sales patterns that was done several years ago closely resembles the 1975 pattern.

The smart shopper and seller could be missing an excellent opportunity by conforming to those patterns, he suggested.

"If you can overcome what almost seems to be an instinct to houseshop only in warm weather, or to put your home up for sale at that time, there can be some nice dividends. For one, there is less a sense of being forced to make hasty decisions. Everybody has a bit more time. And there's the likelihood that you can get more personalized attention," said Walters.

Most mortgages granted in city and suburbs: poll

Nine out of 10 applications for home mortgage loans in the City of Chicago ar acted upon favorably.

The over-all home loan denial rate in Chicago is 5.8 per cent, or less than 1 per cent higher than the suburban rate of 5.0 per cent.

And the vast majority of home mortgage applications in the Chicago area are approved irrespective of whether the homes are in the city or in the suburbs.

THESE ARE THE key findings of a study of loan applications conducted by the Federal Savings and Loan Council of Illinois.

"On the average, almost 19 of 20 home loan applications on which action is taken are granted for city and suburban properties alike," said William B. O'Connell, the council's executive secretary and treasurer.

"But even in areas where denial rates were highest, the overwhelming majority of people who applied for a home loan got one.

"The fact is that in areas where few home loans are being made, few people are applying for home loans."

THE COUNCIL STUDY focused on written loan applications ken by nine major Chicago-based savings and loan institutions in 1975, the same time period covered in mortgage loan disclosure statements recently made available to the public.

These nine institutions have assets of $5.18 billion, or 50 per cent of the assets of all savings and loan institutions based in Chicago. The council estimated that during 1975 these nine institutions supplied about $200 million in mortgages and housing-related loans to Chicago residents.

The institutions are Chesterfield Fedtral, Chicago Federal, Fidelity Federal, First Federal of Chicago, Home Federal, North West Federal, St. Paul Federal, Standard Federal and Talman Federal.

The study showed that these lenders received 5,409 mortgage loan applications on city homeowner properties in 1975 and granted 4,895 or 90.5 per cent loans.

ONLY 315 APPLICATIONS, or 5.8 per cent, were denied. The remainder were not closed.

Reasons for failure to close include multiple submissions, where an applicant applies for loans at two or more institutions; other failures on the applicant's part to follow up on the application, and loans applied for which may not have been closed during the year under study.

During 1975, 70.6 per cent of the loan applications at these Chicago-based institutions were for suburban properties, compared with 29.4 per cent for properties in Chicago.

This reflects the housing stock in the Chicago metropolitan area, where approximately two out of three homeowner dwelling units are in the suburbs. During 1975, the nine institutions had 16 branch offices in suburban locations in addition to their Chicago home offices.

THE NINE INSTITUTIONS received 12,988 applications for loans on suburban properties during 1975. They granted 10,493, or 80.8 per cent; denied 653, and took no action on the remainder.

The nine institutions made home loans in every zip code entirely within the city except zip codes 60654, the Merchandise Mart, and 60666, O'Hare International Airport.

O'Connell said that although the council study has pinpointed major trends, its results cannot be taken as all-inclusive because only half of the city's savings and loan assets were covered in the survey.

O'Connell said results of the federal council study are in line with those of a Fair Housing Information Survey conducted by the four federal financial institution regulatory agencies from June 1, 1974, through Nov. 30, 1974.

Homes in sun belt benefit

Future bright for solar energy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — By the end of this year government experts expect there will be about 1,500 houses, schools, office buildings, restaurants and factories in the United States drawing all or part of their heat from the sun.

Many, as might be expected, lie in the nation's southern sun belt.

A three-bedroom house built south of Salisbury, N.C., by Carolina Solar Corp. recently was put on the market at $38,000, the same price as another house in the same subdivision that is almost the same but draws its heat from a conventional heat pump.

THE AIR FORCE is preparing to install solar heating in a 60,000-square-foot shopping center at Randolph Air Force Base in San Antonio, Tex., and in the 40,000-square-foot main retail store at Kirtland AFB, Albuquerque, N.M.

Equipment adapted from techniques used in Australia to dry timber is being installed at an Indian pueblo near Santa Fe, N.M., to provide heat with half the usual number of solar collectors. The system was developed by the University of California's Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory.

And the Blue Skies Radiant Home Co. has just announced it will soon develop the largest tract of solar-heated homes in the United States at Hemet, Calif., 30 miles southeast of Riverside. Plans call for up to 33 homes, priced from $36,900 for a two-bedroom house to $45,400 for a four-bedroom model.

But a surprisingly large number of solar heated houses lie as far north as Bend, Ore.; Boulder, Colo; Minneapolis, Minn.; Queechee Lake, Vt.; and Woonsocket, R.I.

THEY DIFFER generally from their more southerly cousins in that they must have a larger number of solar collectors, they must be more heavily insulated and they draw from 50 to 75 per cent of their heating from the sun rather than 75 to 90 per cent.

But the promise in the north is substantial nonetheless. A report by the Massachusetts State Energy Policy Office recently estimated citizens of the state could reduce their fuel bills a total $120 million a year by 1985 "with widespread adoption of solar power."

The U.S. Post Office at Boulder is being refitted with a solar heating and cooling system under an Energy Research and Development Administration program. ERDA and Post Office officials say if it is successful it could be but the first of many such conversions.

Many solar buildings are privately constructed. Others are put up as part of demonstration programs funded by ERDA. Still others are built under a program sponsored by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

By 1985, ERDA and HUD officials say, the total built under government programs alone could go as high as 4,000.

Safely ground all electrical tools

Electrically powered hand drills, hedge trimmers and many other indoor and outdoor tools have become as much a part of routine living as television and powered transportation.

Because power tools touch the lives of millions of do-it-yourselfers around the home, as well as professional tradesmen, the manufacturer members of the Power Tool Institute strongly emphasize the importance of safe, proper "grounding" of electrical tools that are not double insulated. Double insulated tools have an added internal insulation barrier built-in that safely eliminates the need for a third grounding wire. These tools are clearly marked to show they are double insulated, and are equipped with a two-prong power cord.

Grounding, in simplest terms, is your assurance of keeping the electricity flowing through wires and not through you.

Recommended do's and don'ts concerning grounding of your power tools are as important as a sound steer ng mechanism and brakes ments relate only to the three wire system now is use. If you have an old non-double insulated two wire tool, it should be replaced with either a three wire unit or a double insulated one.

Electricity has often and aptly been likened to water flowing through a pipe. In this sense, consider the pipe the wire and electricity the water. If a break occurs in the pipe, the water will seek the fastest, least resistant path to the ground. With electricity, if there is a break in the wire, a short or similar problem, your body can become part of the least resistant path of electricity to the ground.

When you plug a power tool into an electrical receptacle, you have become a part of what you might call "a circle of electrical power." You are part of it only in the sense that you are controlling or using the electrical current to saw, drill or what have you. You remain in control and safely insulated from the flow of electricity through the plug-in receptacle to the tool and back through the receptacle and to the ground — as long as there is no break or short within this loop.

If a break or short does occur, the leakage of electricity can become a danger to you — depending on circumstances.

Using clean fill protects plants from viruses

Not all is known about the ailments of plants. As yet unidentified viruses, bacteria, fungi, insects and other unknown factors probably contribute to the poor health and even death of plants. So when one of your favorite flowers or shrubs turns brown and dies, there may not be a valid answer as to the cause of its death.

The effect of a variety of physical conditions on plants is well-established. We know that too much water damages most plants and too little water is equally damaging. We also know that poor drainage affects plants in a deleterious way.

Just how chemicals in the air and in the ground influence plant life is not completely understood, but it is known that many chemicals and other contaminants are harmful to plant life.

As an individual you can only join with your neighbors in political action to eliminate pollution of the air and water. But if you are having a house built, there is direct action you can take against pollution of the soil — your soil.

Usually when a house is built, there is much debris buried around its foundation. The top sketch is typical of the appearance of a house during construction after foundation drains have been installed, walls waterproofed, but before backfill has been placed. Lying around are old cement sacks, cardboard cartons, pieces of plaster or plaster board and odd pieces of wood. The lower sketch shows some of these materials incorporated in the backfill.

To eliminate future headaches and failures with your future planting, you will be doing yourself a great favor by demanding your contractor to use only clean fill when he backfills around your house.

If you have just bought a house and you find that the planting around it is not healthy looking, probe around in the ground for debris that might be the cause of your plant's condition. Cement, plaster or plaster board debris spells almost sure death to most broad leaf evergreens. If it is not removed, your chances of ever succeeding with these plants are remote.

INSIGHT will open your eyes. Saturdays in The Herald

Home builders price out of market

About real estate

by Don G. Campbell

Where is all the money coming from? It's the recurring question as honest burghers in modest financial circumstances watch in bafflement as people pay $250,000 for yachts, $24,000 for cars with customized bodies and buy retirement homes in the $100,000 range — for cash.

Who are these people, indeed?

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

Who are all the people who qualify for all of the $45,000 and up project houses that are surrounding our city? Is there any way our GI house-buying benefit can be used for one of our grown children? duo-purchase and tenancy or whatever?) Will there ever be a project in the $15,000 to $30,000 class that my children might be able to afford?

My husband and I do not have enough money to purchase a house or condo, yet we pay rent regularly ($165 a month) and have an adequate credit rating. That large a purchase probably is out, I suppose, because of the lack of projected funds in our retirement — roughly eight to ten years from now.

I must face it: we are poor. Who are "they," and where do "they" work — these rich people who can qualify for house purchases? — Mrs. F.S.D., (El Cajon, Calif.)

ANSWER: You've put your finger on a knotty problem that worries almost everyone who sees an eventual cutoff of most residential home building when the industry finally prices itself completely out of the market.

The median price for a single-family home right now is about $44,000. Half of the available homes sell for more than $44,000 and half sell for less, which means that a buyer, in order to qualify for a mortgage, must be earning between $17,000 and $22,000 a year. This is quite a bit of money for young couples going into the child-raising years.

Where are they coming from and where are they getting the money? Beats me. There are apparently a lot of people taking on ruinous mortgage commitments — and a lot of lenders permitting them to do so.

No, forget the idea of using GI eligibility to pass on a home to your children. I can't see a lender going for it (unless the child could otherwise qualify) and it wouldn't be a good risk for you.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

My wife and I met and were married when we were both in the Army a few years ago. We are now in civilian life and are in the market for a house. In talking with a friend about buying a house with GI financing, he said that even though my wife and I are both veterans we are entitled to only one chance at this. It doesn't sound fair to me since we are both veterans. — Mr. P.O.C. (Oceanside, Calif.)

ANSWER: Your friend is all wet. Both of you have an entitlement. After buying one house with a GI guarantee and subsequently selling it, you can then move on to a second GI-financed house (with the mortgage guaranteed, that is, by the VA) using the other partner's entitlement.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

I am a widow living on Social Security and need more income. I have a little money (about $10,000) that I could invest and a friend has suggested that I put the money into "second mortgages," where he says I should get a return of maybe 14 or 15 per cent on my money. Do you think this would be a good idea? — Mrs. W.W.B. (Tucson, Ariz.)

ANSWER: No, I wouldn't advise it for someone in your position at all. Even a good second mortgage has more inherent risks in it than someone living on a small, fixed, income should shoulder. If the buyer defaults, the first mortgage holder is first in line to get his money — and, as the second mortgage holder, you're trailing along far behind.

Forget this and ask a local banker or broker to put you in a good, well-rated, bond ("A" or better) aiming for a yield of about 9 pr cent. You'll sleep a lot better.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

My husband has been transferred by his employer and we have to make the cross-country move in about a month. I'm concerned about the lease we have on this apartment because it still has over a year to go. My husband says we don't have anything to worry about because his transfer takes this out of his hands and we're not liable. Is this so? — Mrs. B.V. (Allentown, Pa.)

ANSWER: Your husband's answer sounds great, but fortunately it doesn't hold water — legally. Let's just hope you have a sympathetic landlord who will let you off the hook. That's what it takes.

LET'S TALK IT OVER

JERRY BOUSCHARD

Of the millions of homes that are sold in America each year, about five of every six are not new. Why is it that these "previously-owned" homes are so popular? First, the buyer has a much greater selection from which to choose when he considers the older homes. There are several times as many on the market at any time as new homes.

The "pre-owned" house is apt to be larger, with bigger rooms. The buyer has a better idea of how the neighborhood will develop. There's a charm and individuality about older homes. Trees, shrubs and landscaping are in and established.

We can find a buyer for your house. If you're thinking of selling, let's "Talk It Over." Our ideas can be valuable to you while you're in the planning stage.

Real estate sales workshop Oct. 25-29

Real Estate Education Company's highly successful five-day workshop, "Fundamentals of Real Estate Salesmanship - Residential," will be repeated October 25-29 at the Hilton-Arlington Park, Route 53 and Euclid Avenue in Arlington Heights. Hours are 8:30 to 5:00 each day.

Intended both for the newer salesperson who needs to learn the basics of real estate salesmanship, and the experienced salesperson who seeks to sharpen her or his skills through a refresher course in the fundamentals, the workshop gives participants intensive training and practice in the special techniques needed to get more listings and make more sales.

The program was developed and is presented nationwide by Real Estate Education Company, following more than three years of extensive research in the field of residential real estate selling. Its unique approach of role playing in a workshop setting is an attractive alternative to costly trial-and-error in the field.

Particpants in last month's workshop were enthusiastic in their praise, commenting that, "It was a real pepper-upper . . . I gained a great deal of confidence . . . A very valuable course . . . Wish I had taken the course at the beginning of my sales career . . . Extremely important for experienced salespersons to build their skills and evaluate their work, to work smarter and reach full potential . . . Definitely would recommend to other salespeople."

Bill Hayden, Real Estate Education Company's director of seminars, once again will be the program leader.

Registration in the workshop is limited to 30, and pre-registration is required. For additional information, call Real Estate Education Company at 644-0475.

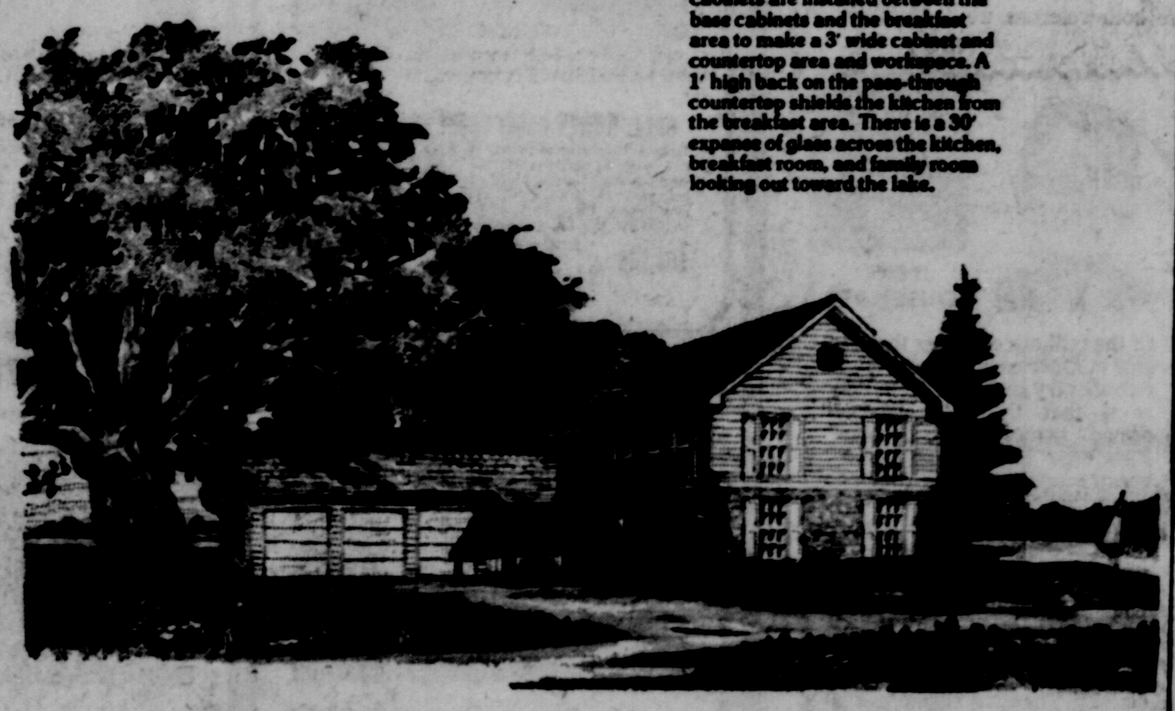
THE IDEA HOME

The home pictured below, like most of our homes, includes a full basement, three car garage with electric door opener, air conditioning, humidification, brick or stone veneer, cedar siding, screened-in porch, oak cabinetry and two fireplaces. In addition, our Idea Home has many unique concepts:

Idea No. 1—Site Planning
As with all homes designed by Barrington Construction Company, the Idea Home was individually designed for the natural terrain of the lot. The lot is on a corner with a large lake on one side and woods on the other, so the family room-kitchen areas take maximum advantage of both the lake view and the seclusion. The screen porch is as private as if it had a fence around it since the woods shield it from the street and other houses.

Idea No. 2—Entrance
The centrally located foyer distributes traffic to six areas: The living room, family room, kitchen, laundry room, den and second floor. The foyer floor is a country brick ceramic tile. Since this is a home in the country, with unusual vistas, the foyer was designed to let you see through the family room to the woods, through the kitchen to the lake, and through the living room to the front lawn.

Idea No. 3—Kitchen
The kitchen is designed in a country motif. The cabinets have oak panelled doors in walnut finish. Total cooking capability is provided by a microwave oven, a self-clean oven, electric cooktop, indoor grill and griddle. The ceramic tile cooking center is framed with heavy, solid cedar beams and columns dark stained. A new type of kitchen sink has an oversized compartment for washing large pots and pans. Instead of peninsular wall cabinets which cut the kitchen in half, the wall cabinets are installed between the base cabinets and the breakfast area to make a 3' wide cabinet and countertop area and workspace. A 1' high back on the pass-through countertop shields the kitchen from the breakfast area. There is a 30' expanse of glass across the kitchen, breakfast room, and family room looking out toward the lake.



Idea No. 4—Family Room/Screened Porch
The family room is panelled with rough-sawn horizontal cedar boards of the same pattern as the exterior siding. The ceiling has heavy rough-sawn cedar beams that are solid timber. On each side of the fireplace, sliding glass doors lead to the large screened-in porch and patio overlooking the lake. The screening goes all the way from the floor to the underside of the cedar rafters, to give you an open feeling.

Idea No. 5—
The "Whatever-you-want-it-for-Room"
Most people have always wanted an extra room for some special use: Library, office, guest room, sewing room, music room, game room, study, den, you name it. This room is directly off the foyer, with sliding glass doors leading to the screened-in porch. It has a full wall of floor-to-ceiling bookcases.

Idea No. 6—Owner's Suite
Upstairs, there are four large bedrooms. The owner's suite is several rooms in one. A fireplace divides the sleeping area from the sitting room. There are sliding glass doors from the sitting room and the dressing room to a wood deck overlooking the lake. The dressing room has three-way, full-length mirror doors, a double walk-in closet with 20' of clothespole, and a large linen closet. There are double bath vanities and a luminous ceiling over the vanity area with full-height mirror completely covering two walls.

Individually Designed One-Of-A-Kind Homes In A Unique Environment

In South Barrington, you will find a secluded community of 1-2 acre homesites on high, rolling terrain overlooking miles of countryside and small private ponds. Some lots are on one of the largest residential lakes in Cook County with four season recreation. The Village of Barrington, shopping, schools, golf courses, indoor tennis, other activities are minutes away.

Barrington Construction Company designs and builds a one-of-a-kind home to fit the individual tastes of each owner. Home types include ranch, hillside ranch, Cape Cod, and 2-story. Home styles include colonial, traditional, Spanish, and rustic contemporary. If you have some dramatic, unusual ideas of your own for a new home, come see us. We'll take the time and effort to design and build a home for your particular lifestyle. Call 381-6288 for an appointment to discuss your plans and visit our Idea Home.

Barrington Construction Company
Individually Designed One-Of-A-Kind Homes

Laseke Electric adding to present shop

Laseke Electric Co., established in Palatine in 1935, are in the process of adding on to their present service center facilities.

The firm started in a garage at 428 N. Easy St., Palatine and moved to their present location at 346 N. Northwest Hwy. in 1950.

Providing service for electro-mechanical equipment they primarily repair and rebuild electric motors. Growth of Palatine and the surrounding area, especially the increase of industrial plants, has created an increasing demand for these services.

The additional 500 sq. ft. will provide an area for the removal of wire from stators, a room for varnish dipping of rewound stators, and for cleaning and finishing the rebuilt motors. The new equipment to be installed in the room will make this a safer and faster operation.

Construction was started Sept. 13, and is expected to be completed by Nov. 1.

Northern Feather opens area office

Northern Feather International, a Danish-based corporation, has just leased 10,800 square feet of space in Regent Industrial Center, Elk Grove Village. Northern Feather manufactures world-renowned eiderdown quilts and pillows and will make Regent Industrial Center their Midwest regional office and distribution headquarters.

U.S. offers low cost housing via HUD plan

Urias Jackson, an electronics technician, and Russell Moran, a stonemason, beat the high cost of housing by paying less than $15,000 apiece for comfortable homes in the metropolitan Detroit area.

Like the Jacksons and Morans, other families across the country with a little cash and a willingness to make repairs are finding similar bargains offered by the U. S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development.

By now, HUD has only 29,000 properties left to offer prospective buyers — the bulk of them in Detroit, Atlanta, Philadelphia, New York, and Chicago areas.

The government sales program is working with the market. Prices are reasonable. New owners can expect their equities to rise. Once improved, the properties constitute good mortgage investments.

"When the government helps families to become part of the housing demand, by rental or purchasing assistance, then the government is working with the market," said Secretary Carla A. Hills of the Housing and Urban Development Department.

"As I see it, the primary federal role — in addition to housing the poor — is to help assure that the market is working," she said.

"For that reason, I am particularly impressed with this creative and prompt sale of repossessed properties."

The houses and lots originally were bought by home owners with mortgages insured by Uncle Sam, mostly in the late 1960s and early 1970s. They became HUD property when owners defaulted and the mortgages were foreclosed by private lenders.

Many of them are in good neighborhoods. Virtually all are repairable. This year, the houses have been moving fast.

In the last 14 months, HUD reduced its housing inventory by 21,883 — a 43 per cent drop from almost 51,000 to about 29,000 properties. The carrying charges to HUD for holding one single-family house amount to $6.93 a day.

Had these properties been carried on the federal rolls for a full year, the charges would have cost taxpayers about $55.3 million.

In June alone, sales or transfers of 3,241 properties constituted the largest monthly inventory reduction in the 42 year history of the insured mortgage program.

The department disposed of more than 7,000 houses and home lots in the Detroit area through the past eight months.

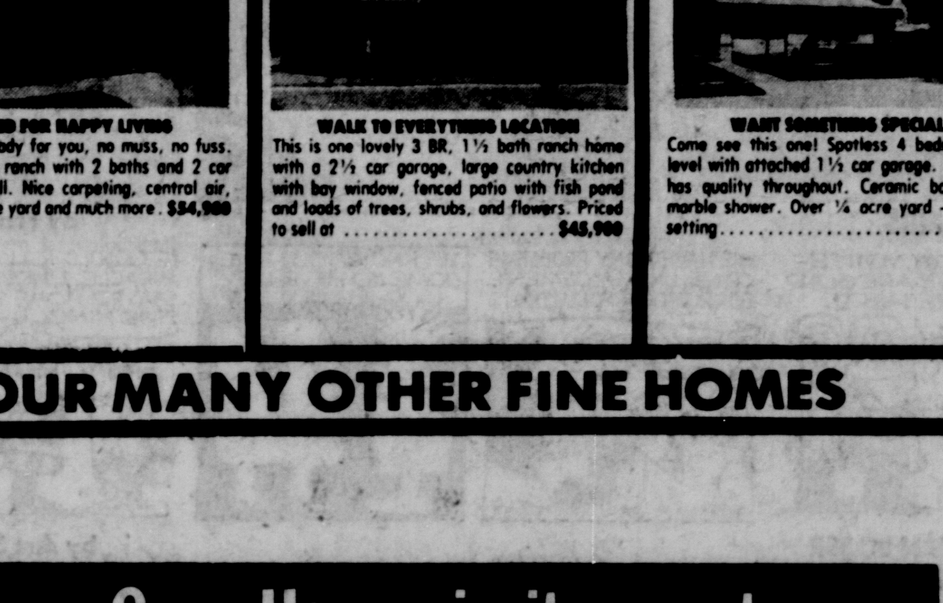
OPEN HOUSE



Right now, people are moving into homes they once thought they couldn't afford. And this special kind of open house will show you how you can too. Come see one of our custom homes before it's all finished. Examine a unique, money-saving concept called the Finish-It-Yourself House™, first hand.

Finishing a custom-built Capp home yourself enables you to save thousands, compared to the cost of having a general contractor build the same house on your lot. You'll see how a homebuyer can custom design his dream home . . . and work step-by-step with Capp in making his dream come true.

Because the house you'll see is unfinished and ready for its owner to complete, you'll get a chance to see Capp custom-built quality close up. At this open house, nothing is hidden. And you'll learn how you can finish your home with materials and instructions we provide.

Measuring mountains tricky job

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Cindy Robinson, 11, of Gastonia, N.C., for her question: HOW DO THEY MEASURE THE HEIGHT OF MOUNTAINS?

The height of a mountain refers to the distance of the summit above sea level. Pikes Peak in Colorado, for example, rises about 9,000 feet above the surface of the nearby Great Plains, but its recorded height is 14,110 feet — or the distance above sea level.

Measuring a mountain's height begins with the tricky job of verifying sea level. Standard sea level is the midway point between high tide and low tide, and it is based on countless measurements and estimates taken at numerous points on the worldwide ocean.

Many mountain heights are established by surveyors on foot. Among other instruments, the surveyor carries an altimeter and a simple hand level for measuring up the grades in easy stages.

The altimeter measures barometric pressure and translates it into an estimated number of feet above sea level. The hand level is a sort of spyglass used to sight a point ahead. This altitude measurement equals the distance between the surveyor's feet and his eye level. Of course, many sightings with the hand level are needed to estimate the height of a high mountain.

The altimeter has simplified height measurement. A grandchild of the barometer, it measures the weight of the atmosphere pressing down on the ground and translates this into feet above sea level. Any given altitude has a specific pressure, and the face of the altimeter is marked with the altitude corresponding to each pressure.

The hand level is subject to human error, and the altimeter can miscalculate when air masses cause variations in the barometric pressure. For more precise readings, surveyors use complicated instruments and techniques based on geometry and trigonometry. Although they can use these methods without actually climbing the mountain, they do need to see the peak.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Bobby Specter, of Eugene, Ore., for his questions:

WHY ARE DALMATIANS ALSO KNOWN AS "FIRE DOGS"?

No one is sure exactly where the original home of the Dalmatian was. However, many experts think it was in Dalmatia, an area in Yugoslavia. One thing for sure, no matter where the breed originated, it is an exceptional one.

Dalmatians have served admirably as war dogs, shepherds, sentries, draft dogs, hunting companions, guard dogs and as all-around pets. Its keen mind has even earned it the spotlight in circuses and on the stage.

The Dalmatian has as many nicknames as it does talents. One of its nicknames, "coach dog," comes from its love for running alongside horse-drawn coaches and its attraction for horses. Naturally enough, Dalmatians also loved to race alongside fire wagons with their galloping horses. Many fire houses kept Dalmatians as pets where they earned their keep by keeping the place clear of rats and other vermin. In time, they came to be known as "fire-house dogs," or simply "fire dogs." Many modern fire departments still have Dalmatians as mascots, but now they sit in the front seat on the way to a fire.

A toss-up on two boards

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

One chapter in Boris Schapiro's book is entitled "No Swing." It covers hands from team games where something went wrong at both tables.

East's notrump opening was one of those weak notrumps the British like to bid. South's two-heart call was a sub minimum, if you can say that many nice things about it.

West's two notrump was competitive. North's jump to four hearts was based on the expectation that South would hold a better hand. West's double was based on his two aces plus. He opened the queen of clubs and shifted to a trump after it held. East's queen forced South's ace.

South ruffed a club and led a diamond to his jack and West's ace. At this point West fell asleep. He led a second trump. South won with dummy's king, came to his hand with the king of diamonds and eventually discarded a spade on dummy's last diamond to make four hearts doubled and score 590 points.

The board wasn't an exact tie. The bidding went the same way at the other table except that North bid just three hearts. West made a hungry double and defended the hand one trick better. He did take his ace of spades and give his partner a trick with the king, but that South made three hearts doubled for a score of 530.

3rd District discusses state races

A Herald Staff Report
Four in a series

A hotly contested state representative race and some candidate's work for Ronald Reagan appeared to draw more attention from voters in the 3rd Legislative District than the issues.

Residents of the district, which includes all Schaumburg Township and portions of Palatine, Wheeling and Elk Grove Township, seemed to focus more clearly on candidates than any other district in the Northwest suburbs.

The name recognition factor cropped up in a number of interviews done by a team of Herald reporters in recent weeks in an attempt to guage interest in the election and determine what the voter's thought are the election issues.

RESIDENTS SINGLED out the school situation when they did talk about issues.

"I'm not sure just how much money is being paid in school tax, but I think the schools throughout the state are in a needy position," George Radelin of Schaumburg said.

In talking about candidates rather than issues, the voters pointed to the sharply contested race between Democrat Joan E. Brennan of Elk Grove Village and State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

"I think it is hotly contested, but I am not sure how it will turn out," Lawrence C. Stroneberg of Mount Prospect said.

The involvement of State Rep. Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates and State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, in the campaign of former California Gov. Reagan also drew notice.

The numbers seemed evenly divided as to whether their leadership role in the losing presidential bid would help or hinder their local campaigns. Both men lost bids to be elected as Reagan delegates from the 12th Congressional District and coordinated the Reagan campaign in Illinois.

"I DON'T THINK Totten will have any problems because of the Reagan support because Reagan isn't running," Marilyn Ramage of Schaumburg said.

Others said they thought the association might hurt, but they offered no specific reasons.

Almost half of those questioned in random on-the-street and telephone interviews said they were not familiar with the candidates or issues.

Some candidly admitted they did not plan to vote or were concentrating on other campaigns.

"I'm not at all interested in the 3rd District race, because I am concentrating on the national election," one Schaumburg woman said.

A NUMBER OF other persons said they were new to the constantly expanding area and did not know about the issues.

Allan Berman of Palatine termed the frequently discussed question of disannexing the suburbs from Cook County as an election issue.

"Lincoln County (as the proposal has come to have been known) is a good idea, because our money goes away from us locally. We're in a sense paying for a lot of things that go on in Chicago," Berman said.

The controversial Lincoln Green housing proposal in Arlington Heights also was mentioned as an issue by some residents in that village and neighboring Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Robert M. Woods of Arlington Heights cited the proposed housing complex as a "big issue" in the election.

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald's effort to establish juvenile courts in this area also were mentioned by several voters. They indicated the proposal was a good idea and mentioned the plan in the context of the need to bring down the vandalism problem in the Northwest suburbs.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED since J. Daniel Baumann posed for this picture used in his father Roy Baumann's 1940 radio promotion.

Music store celebrates 50th year

by LEA TONKIN

A scrapbook of memories and renewed plans for a successful business venture will mark the 50th anniversary open house from 1 to 8 p.m. Saturday at Roy Baumann Music, Arlington Heights.

Some Northwest suburban residents may recall Roy Baumann as the salesman of pianos, organs and sound systems who posed standing on his head for a newspaper advertisement with the caption, "I'll stand on my head to please a customer."

According to his son Clayton, the elder Baumann and his wife Ebba have built a family business which continues to provide personalized customer service.

CLAYTON BAUMANN, who takes an active interest in the business along with his work as north states regional field director in the Youth for Christ International organization, said his father realized the importance of providing customers comparison shopping guidance in the purchase of pianos.

"People want to sit down and talk about things without being rushed," he said. "Dad was always known for going the extra mile."

"Dad's been that way all his life," Baumann continued. "He'd dissect a piano for a customer. You'd come in and find all the parts lying on the floor."

Baumann said his parents personally delivered many of the pianos sold out of the store at 24 E. Northwest Hwy.

ROY BAUMANN kept a scrapbook of pictures and other momentoes representing his business ventures. Launched in 1926 in his parents' Chicago home, Baumann's business expanded to three locations in the 4000 Irving Park area. Appliances, pianos, television sets and furniture were included in his wares.

In 1960, Baumann moved the furniture and appliance business to another Chicago site and opened the Arlington Heights music store. Roy and Ebba Baumann now spend most of their time in Door County, Wis., or in Florida. They frequently visit their son Daniel, a California minister. Clayton Baumann said his parents retain their interest in the company.

Baumann said his parents also shared an interest in church work, including Pacific Garden Mission in Chicago, development of the Evangelical Free Church in Arlington Heights and youth work at Meadows Baptist Church.

OVERNIGHT BAG in hand, Evelyn Spielman arrives at Holy Family Hospital where her physician has already arranged many of the provisions of her hospital stay. First stop on the way to the hospital room will be the Admissions Office, where admitting procedure is simple, quick and efficient, especially for those who have completed routine laboratory tests in advance.

Hospital admission

It's completely painless

by ELEANOR RIVES

Heading for the hospital?

Decided to have the old gall bladder (tonsils, appendix or whatever) out, eh?

Stocked up the freezer; left written instructions for the sitter; and packed your little overnight bag with toiletries, robe, slippers — and pajamas or nightgowns if you prefer them to hospital gowns.

Your neighbors said not to worry and your friends gaily told you what a terrific rest you were going to have, and you smiled weakly, and now here you are being ushered into the hospital admitting office.

Admission. The first hurdle. Well, relax. You will find the admission procedure quick, efficient, simple and completely painless.

AT HOLY FAMILY Hospital in Des Plaines, where Sister M. Dulciosa oversees about 800 admissions a month, you are admitted by one of four admitting clerks in four separate, completely private offices. Chances are you already had your pre-admission tests (PATs) a few days ago, especially if you are a candidate for surgery.

The PATs, consisting of a chest x-ray, electrocardiogram (for those 18 or over), complete blood count, urinalysis and serology tests, are important to the physician, who may be influenced in his choice of medication on the basis of these tests, even cancel surgery if there is infection present. If a surgical patient has not had his PATs beforehand, he goes directly to the lab from the admissions office.

But in most cases, the PATs are out of the way; the doctor has called in information regarding his diagnosis, nature of medical treatment, suggested diet and scheduled date of surgery; and you, the patient, may have already phoned in information about yourself.

THAT MAKES IT easy. The admitting clerk finishes any blanks in your record, determines whether you are an "insurance patient" or a "private pay patient," or indeed whether you can pay at all, in which case she sends you to the business office to make arrangements or to Social Services to seek financial assistance from outside sources.

But let's say you are an insurance patient. The clerk photostats your medical insurance card (so have it with you) and you sign the insurance forms. So must the "insured" — if that doesn't happen to be you (so have him with you, too).

You also sign a consent for medical treatment and medications. The clerk witnesses the admitting record, makes up the little plastic bracelet that identifies you and attaches it around your right wrist. She also makes a plastic chargeplate to be used in your computerized billing.

YOU ARE THEN given a patient information packet which answers just about every question you can think of, including visiting hours. And if you can't speak English, there are among the hospital personnel 60 persons able to interpret other languages.

If you have more than $5, or any valuables or credit cards with you, you will be asked to store them in the hospital safe until you leave. Wristwatches? Most persons prefer to keep them on their wrist.

There. With some of your admitting procedure done ahead of time, your admission took about 15 minutes. You are ready to be escorted to your room by a volunteer.

"We try to put people of the same age category in the same room," said Ruth Loveless, admitting clerk. "But the roommate will have a different doctor and a different condition. A patient can designate 'non-smoking' too."

ADMITTING PROCEDURE is pretty much the same in the other northwest suburban hospitals. At Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, Betty McGregor reports an average of 1,795 admissions per month.

"Occasionally someone arrives and it's the wrong hospital," she smiled. "Or someone fails to show up, or comes on the wrong day."

She remembers a few maternity admissions that were real cliffhangers — women trying desperately not to become mothers before they reached the maternity floor — in the emergency room, on the couch in the lobby, in the middle of the lobby floor. One red-letter morning, one woman delivered her baby at home, one in the emergency room within 15 minutes of each other.

BETTY IS TOUCHED by the children, some so nonchalant, some deeply apprehensive. "If the parents are cool, the children are usually cool," she said. She told one little girl, "Just think, you will be up on the floor with all the little children." The child replied wonderingly, "On the floor! Don't I get a bed?"

At Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge, where an average of 2,200 persons are admitted each month, 15 clerks deal directly with admissions.

"We're aware that this is the first point of contact with the patient," said Arlette Figdore, acting director of admissions. "His importance is our thrust. we don't want to get lost in the paperwork and lose sight of him. It's in keeping with our concept of human ecology."

LUTHERAN GENERAL hopes eventually to equip physicians' offices with pre-admission forms. As the procedure at the hospital becomes more automated, the admissions office intends to preserve a personalized approach by assigning a personal representative to each new patient, someone to relieve his anxieties and fears, to advise him on financial concerns, hospital policy and procedure.

"We get the tragic, the special transfers here," said Arlette, "partly because we have a hyperbaric chamber, a high-risk nursery, much specialized equipment. We try to meet the needs of every patient even if it's just a word of consolation or explanation."

AT ALEXIAN BROTHERS Medical Center in Elk Grove Village, admissions average 1,250 per month. Four patients may be admitted simultaneously. Should anyone arrive in the emergency room or outpatient department, unable to come to the admitting office, the clerk takes the admitting office to the patient.

Mary Comerford, admitting clerk, reports that when PATs and some pre-admission are done in advance, it takes about 15 minutes to admit a patient. Except perhaps for some cute little pipsqueaks who have a lot of questions on their minds.

One little boy asked for a full explanation of why he had tonsils. "Oh I don't know," said Mary. "You'll have to ask the Lord."

"Is he here now?" asked the child. Mary assured him that He was.

PLASTIC BRACELET being secured to wrist of Clara Sadowski of Prospect Heights, tells her name, age, religion, hospital number and doctor. Sue Ryder, right, admitting clerk, finishes up the simple admission procedure as employe Ilah Willenbrock prepares to wheel Clara to her room.

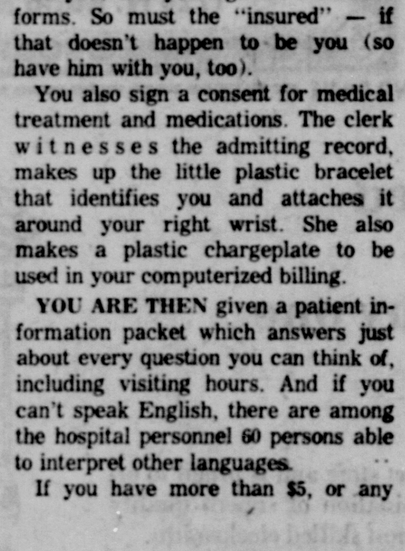
Luncheon group lets working women share ideas

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

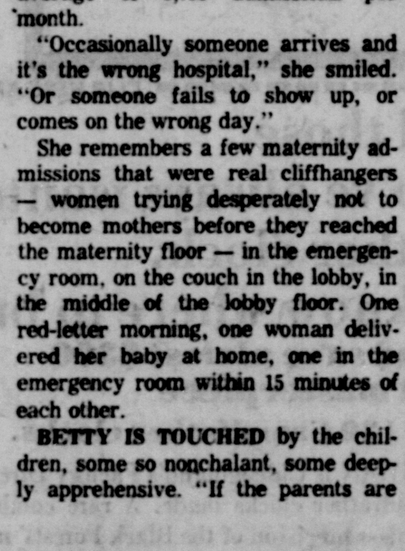
Their members run the gamut from student social workers to politicians and management consultants. Some are strong proponents of the feminist movement; others wouldn't consider joining NOW (National Organization for Women).

But the Women Working Together who meet each month in Arlington Heights for lunch and good conversation agree on one thing: the need for a resource and support group directed at working women in the Northwest suburbs.

Women Working Together was organized in April of this year by Jeanne Peters and Carol Wrabl of Affirmative Action Consultants, Inc., and Julie Sass of the Minority Information Referral Service. All three saw a chance for other professional women to meet in a Rotary type of situation, and the luncheon group was born.



JULIE SASS



JEANNE PETERS

"There's nothing in this area aimed at professional working women," says Ms. Peters. "Most of the other business groups like Rotary and Kiwanis do the same thing we do, but they're still, for the most part, men only."

"I WOULD hope that eventually we wouldn't need this type of group," adds Ms. Sass, "but right now we've got a long way to go. As long as women are still rationalizing home and a career, there's a need for it."

The group meets once a month, and although the mailing list of 150 reaches as far as Evanston, most of the 30 or so members are from the Northwest suburbs. A different member addresses the group each week, and topics have ranged from women in therapy to the anatomy of affirmative action.

Whatever the agenda, there's plenty of time for discussion. Members introduce themselves at each meeting, and a problem one woman faces has often been solved by another. A recently-unemployed woman, for example, may meet a director of an employment agency, or a business manager with a need for data processing may share coffee and ideas with an employe of a computer firm.

THE PROBLEM, says Ms. Peters, is that women on their way up the corporate ladder have few role models to follow. While their male counterparts have coffee with the boss and head off to Rotary luncheons, women professionals often have no idea whether their problems are unique or shared by many, she adds.

"In the past, women have often been their own worst enemies," says Ms. Peters, referring to the "queen bee syndrome" in which successful working women keep their distance from other females in the office.

"But that's changing now," she continues. "Women are recognizing a need for support that doesn't necessarily tie in with the women's movement. 'Women's lib' is a label we want to avoid."

Adds Ms. Sass, "Our discussions have covered everything from sexuality to sex discrimination . . . while I doubt that fast friendships are being made, it's a good way to make ourselves heard!"

Women Working Together meets the third Wednesday of the month at the Brass Rail in Arlington Heights. Salad bar and speaker costs $5; for the program alone the cost is $2.75. Lunch starts at noon and the program begins at 12:30, concluding at 1:30.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Weight loss should help blood pressure

I am 48 years old, weigh 210 pounds and am 5 feet 4. By the time I get to the doctor's office my blood pressure is 180 over 120.

My doctor had me on several medicines before trying Ser-Ap-Es. After three weeks on that medicine I had night mares, severe depression and was thinking of ways to commit suicide. At times I was unable to control my arm muscles, andit felt like a cereal bowl was imbedded in tze top of my head. I had a general mental change.

I changed doctors and was put on Naturetin. With the first pill I felt like I wanted to climb the wall. Tranquilizers such as Equanil seem to irritate my nervous system instead of calming me. I've quit taking all medication and am trying to lose wight. But I'm worried that in the meantime the blood pressure may cause more serious problems.

I'm hoping you can come up with some solution for me, because with all these problems combined, some days it just seems like I won't be able to cope with them much longer.

Have heart, you are on the right track. The most important thing you can do for yourself is lose wight.

Ser-Ap-Es is a combination medicine that contains Serpasil. This medicine is capable of causing the mental symptoms you describe. This can happen in a normal person but is particularly likely to occur in a person who already tends to be depressed.

Some people do not respond as usual to tranquilizers and a number of the medicines used to treat high blood pressure do have major side effects. That is why many doctors prefer to treat elevated blood pressure with the least amount of the most effective medicine. There is always the danger that the treatment may be worse than the disease.

You should talk over your problem with your doctor and tell him you want to try to lower your pressure with weight reduction and salt restriction. He will help you. The reason you have been given medicines is simply that your doctors are also worried about your blood pressure while you are needing to lose weight.

You probably should be taking one of the mild diuretics — water pills. I would recommend Diuril or Hydrodiuril and nothing else. These do nothing to your nervous system and act only to eliminate salt and water. They will help lower your pressure some and probably enough to keep you out of danger.

The rest will be up to you. That means a dedicated weight control program. To help you I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet. Others who want this information can send 50 cents, with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Don't plan on losing too fast. It took a long time to get that heavy and it will take a long time to get rid of it safely. Stay on that diet no matter what. Don't let your friends or family distract you.

Start an exercise program and walk, walk, walk. Walk a short distance that doesn't tire you and then gradually increase the amount every day. Try to build up to walking at least an hour every day. You don't need to walk fast, just every day. Go to a shopping mall to walk if one is nearby if you don't want to do it out of doors.

If you are able to swim, you could also begin swimming every day. Don't allow some health club, though, to get you to do anything more strenuous than walking or swimming until you have lost a great deal of weight.

Three different ways for removing mildew

Dear Dorothy: One of my best curtains (pale green) is mildewed. I'm told you might be able to help. — Mrs. W. H. Hosfield.

Maybe. First, take the curtains outdoors and brush the stain well. There's no sense releasing the spores inside the house. This done, you have a choice of three methods which have been successful for readers. One of the oldest is a two-step method. You wash the article well with soap and water and dry in the sun. Then make a mixture of lemon juice and salt. When the curtain is dry you moisten it with this mixture and spread in the sun. The second and more modern method is to sponge the stain with a mixture of a tablespoon of oxygen bleach to a pint of water — as hot as the fabric will stand. Let curtain remain in this for 30 minutes, then rinse well. The third attack calls for soaking in a solution of two tablespoons of chlorine bleach in a quart of cold water for 15 minutes.

Dear Dorothy: Bought a beautiful silver tray at a garage sale, thinking I'd got a bargain. However, no amount of polishing has budged the tarnish in a few places. What else might I do? —Doris Carracciolo.

I suspect it's not tarnish, but the base metal showing through. A good silversmith ought to be able to replate it. Or wait until you see the department stores advertise specials on replating. "Bargains" cross all of us up from time to time so count yourself in the "club."

Dear Dorothy: I recall one of your readers wanting help in planning a meal with only one oven to work with. I was in the same fix. But at our anniversary, my folks gave us a high-domed frying pan. It's great not only as an extra burner, but in baking chickens and roasts. —Sue Cramer

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz, in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill.)

Julie Lemke–Guy McArthur

Mr. and Mrs. Guy R. McArthur

A Sept. 18 wedding that took place in St. Marcelline's Church, Schaumburg, united Julie Ann Lemke and Guy Raymond McArthur, both graduates of Schaumburg High.

Julie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Lemke, Hanover Park, is employed at the Children's Center in Schaumburg, and Guy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McArthur, Schaumburg, is with Thomas Construction, Elk Grove Village.

Maid of honor for the 3 p.m. double ring service was Bonnie Kovacs, Toledo, and bridesmaids were the bride's sisters, Sandy and Chris; Janet Armstrong, Schaumburg; and Carol Mellon, an aunt from Livonia, Mich.

JULIE'S GOWN was traditional in style, and her veil was five-tiered. She carried white carnations and red roses. Her attendants were in mango colored gowns and carried orange and yellow carnations.

Mark Lasardo, a cousin from Schaumburg, was best man, and ushers were the groom's brother, Kenn McArthur, and Dan McGloon, Schaumburg; Rob McCue, Maywood; and an uncle, Dick Lasardo, Schaumburg.

A reception for 140 guests was held at The Embers in Elgin.

Karen L. Edwards–Richard O. Vinton

Married Sept. 25 in Barrington Presbyterian Church, Karen Lynn Edwards and Richard O. Vinton will be making their home in Sharpsville, Ind., where the groom, son of the Charles L. Vintons, is associated with Vinton Machine Co.

Karen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Edwards of Inverness, is a graduate of Palatine High and has bachelor's and master's degrees from Indiana Univeristy. She works for Indiana Bell in Indianapolis. Her husband graduated from Parks College, St. Louis.

The couple exchanged vows at 2 p.m., then greeted 150 guests at a dinner reception in the garden of the Edwards home. Later the newlyweds left for two weeks in Utah, Colorado and Arizona.

CHARLENE VINTON, sister of the groom, was maid of honor and another sister, Carol Ann Vinton, was a bridesmaid along with Madeleine T. Lee, Roselle, and Patricia J. Hurley, Indianapolis. All four wore a fall floral printed voile over apricot and carried baskets of dried fall flowers.

Karen's ivory silk gown and three-tiered illusion veil were appliqued in Alencon lace and seed pearls. She carried white roses with dried flowers in white and beige.

Russell Vinton was his brother's best man. Groomsmen included the bride's brother, Robert W. Edwards; David Walsh, Southfield, Mich.; and John D. Wood, Greensburg, Pa.

Special guests at the wedding were the bride's grandmothers, Rose Edwards, Buena Vista, Colo.; Opal Mystrom, Waukegan; and Mildred Boslough, Wilmette.

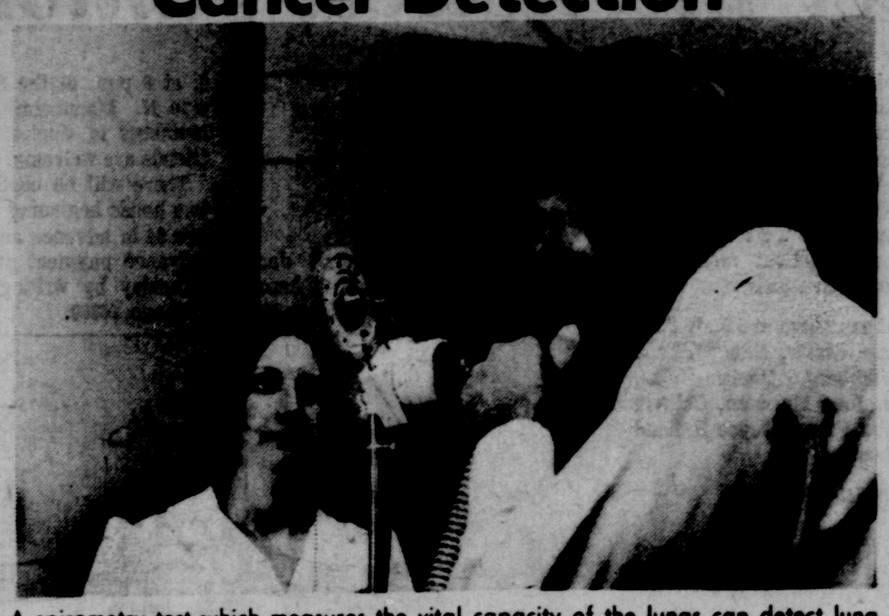
Cancer Detection



A spirometry test which measures the vital capacity of the lungs can detect lung damage due to smoking, asthma, emphysema and other lung diseases. This test is offered by the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. in their Cancer Detection Examination.

Of every six people who get cancer today, two will be saved and four will die. Of the four who would otherwise die, one might be saved with earlier diagnosis and prompt treatment. It is estimated that there will be 675,000 new cases of cancer in 1976 and that there will be 370,000 deaths resulting from cancer. (According to American Cancer Society publication "'76 Cancer Facts and Figures")

The best defense we have against cancer today is early detection and prompt treatment. A yearly Cancer detection examination is the first step that you should take. The Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. offers a thorough 2½ hour low cost Cancer Detection Screening examination including a computerized patient medical history, meticulous physical examination, proctoscopy, chest x-ray, electrocardiogram, blood pressure, over 30 chemical determinations on blood and urine samples, pap smear and instruction in breast self-examination for women, tests for vision, hearing, spirometry, glaucoma, body measurements, percentage of body fat, etc. An analysis of your personal cancer risk factors and educational literature are also provided.

Give yourself the best protection available against cancer by calling your physician or the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. today and make your appointment for a Cancer Detection Examination. Head start on next year's garden

by Mary B. Good

Vegetable growing is a dead issue — after the last tomato is eaten, when there are no more cabbages to be plucked, when you finally run out of zucchini, when you have to start laying out a big chunk of your food budget at the produce counter again.

You're done in the garden for the season, and hallelujah — no more weeding, watering or debugging. But a last little burst of energy now could save some time and effort next growing season:

Most important, if you don't do another thing: Clear off all weeds to prevent seed production and reduce their stab at competition for moisture and nutrients in next year's garden.

GOT SOME STEAM up now? Then shred and compost plant stems, leaves and other foliage residues to make rich humus, and discard any plants suffering from insects or disease to avoid problems which winter-over. Remove wooden stakes, log section dividers, stepping-stone boards or other rottable wooden debris that becomes home for slugs, sowbugs, etc.

Still with me? Next apply finished compost to the garden (if you thought to make it all growing season long with your kitchen scraps, weeds, etc.). Adding compost now will prevent delay in early gardening activities, so you don't have to wait a month after applying compost to plant your stuff, come spring.

If you had trouble growing certain groups of vegetables, there may be a connection as to why they didn't grow. Beets, cabbages, carrots, cauliflower, celery, onions, parsley, lettuce have difficulty in a soil that is too sour. Have a soil test taken. You may need lime to bring up the pH. (To raise the pH of the soil one point requires five pounds of ground limestone for each 10 by 10-foot section garden space.)

IF LETTUCE, spinach or cole crops failed to grow productively, your soil may need nitrogen (sources: dried blood, Milorganite, aged manure). Tomatoes and peppers, for instance, depend on large amounts of phosphorus for their growth (source: phosphate rock, bone meal). A tip-off that your soil may lack potash is poor production of beets and celery. (Fireplace ash is a good source of potash, but do apply wood ash in spring, not now, as it leaches away with the first rain.)

Compost is a good source for all three nutrients for a balanced diet and it is free, but you need to invest your time to make it. Remember, you have to put nutrients back in the soil before you can expect another crop out of that soil.

FINISH OFF with a three or four-inch layer of mulch (straw or shredded leaves) to prevent erosion and improve the tilth. This matter decomposes slowly and becomes part of the topsoil.

Finally stash away a record where you can find it in spring, noting what was planted this year, whether each choice was worthwhile or not, changes to be made, etc. If any problems remain unsolved, for instance, how to eliminate those pesky cucumber beetles, or why the green beans had blue stripes on them, or what to do for scabby potatoes, you'll have plenty of time this winter to see the answers. Keep in mind the name of Jim Fizzell at the Extension Service as an excellent source of information.

Eat & Trim classes open at YMCA

Registration is now open for Eat & Trim classes which begin the week of Nov. 1 at Northwest Suburban YMCA, 300 E. Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines.

Eat & Trim is offered at three levels, consisting of seven weeks each. At level one, emphasis is placed on awareness of food habits, attitude, motivation, and excuses or reasons for overeating. At level two, participants learn to cope with and change behavior. At level three, help is given with problems in the environment, inner conflicts and spiritual needs as they relate to daily living.

For those women who desire a shorter course and do not care to do the assignments in Eat 1 Trim, a seven-week course in Preventive Nutrition is offered. It is primarily for individuals who have some degree of discipline but want to learn how to maintain ideal weight for life without falling for every dangerous crash and fad diet that comes along.

Further information can be obtained at the YMCA, 296-3376.

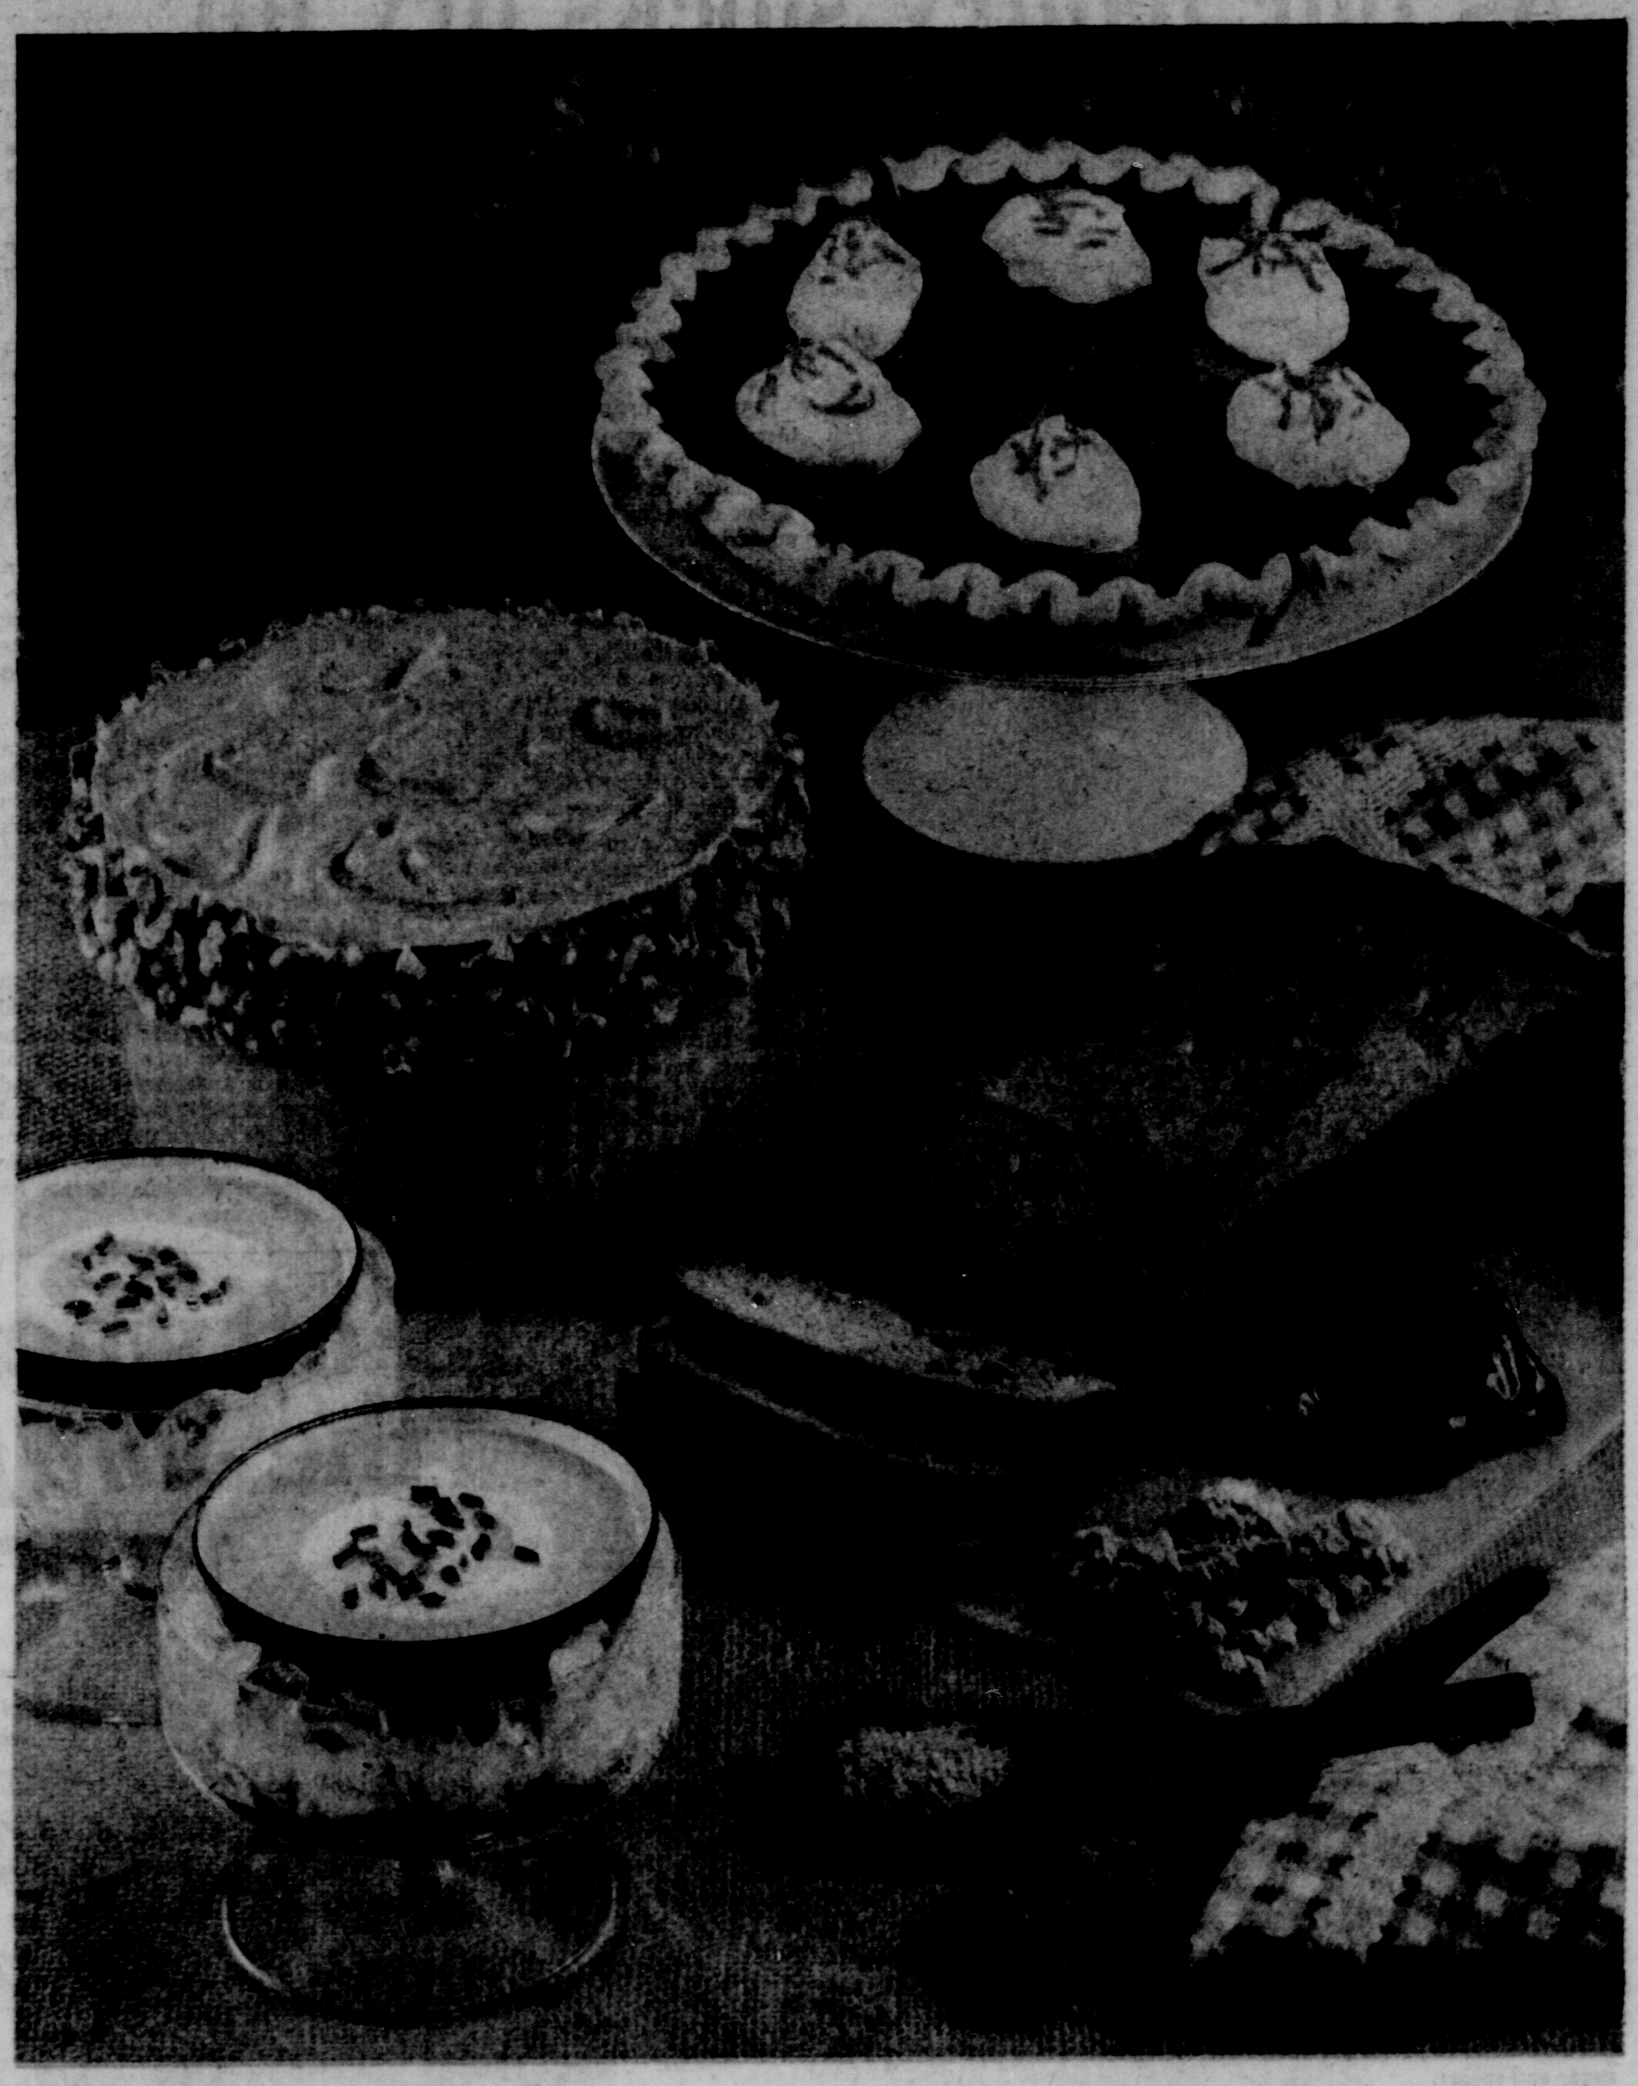
Autumn festival



With the coming of autumn, thoughts turn to holiday festivities and the mingling of the traditional with the modern.

If the season hits you with sudden nostalgia, bringing back memories of the simple goodness of traditional pumpkin pie and golden slices of nut bread, it's not too early to plan your pumpkin specialties for this holiday season.

The wonderfully warm and fragrantly spiced pumpkin pie can be made easily with canned solid pack pumpkin, or with prepared pumpkin filling, an even bigger time-saver. Try a modern garnish for this classic dessert like orange-kist whipped cream or fluffy cream cheese.

For a delicious appetizer that's definitely 1976, Cool Harvest-Moon Soup with its delicate flavoring and creamy texture is reminiscent of the more traditional vichyssoise.

When time is of the essence, a do-ahead dessert, Pumpkin Souffle, can be prepared the day before. Gently spiced and studded with walnuts, this souffle will hold up beautifully in the refrigerator until dessert time.

And for those of us who aren't big dessert fanciers but love the flavor of pumpkin, Pumpkin Nut Loaves, filled with raisins and nuts, make great snacks and meal accompaniments. For an extra flavor boost, add sesame seeds or granola to the basic batter and treat the family to a new, nutritious breakfast bread.

Classic Pumpkin Pie

- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1-½ cups solid pack pumpkin
- ¾ cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon ginger
- ¼ teaspoon cloves
- 1-⅔ cups (13 fluid ounce can) evaporated milk or light cream
- 1 9-inch unbaked pie shell* with high fluted edge

Mix filling ingredients in order given. Pour into pie shell. Bake in preheated 425 degrees oven for 15 minutes. Reduce temperature to 350 degrees and continue baking for 45 minutes or until knife inserted into center of pie filling comes out clean. Cool. Yields 1 9-inch pie.

* If regular size frozen pie shells are used, this filling recipe will fill two shells. Bake according to pie shell package directions.

New Flavor Garnishes For Classic Pumpkin Pie

1. Fluffy orange flavored cream cheese: Soften 1 8-ounce package cream cheese. Add 1 tablespoon orange juice, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind and ¼ cup powdered sugar; beat thoroughly. Refrigerate to chill and allow flavors to blend. Serve on pumpkin pie topped with additional orange rind. Yields 1 ¼ cups.
2. Pour 2-3 tablespoons white Tokay wine or cream sherry evenly over the pumpkin pie filling when it's hot from the oven.
3. Garnish cooled pie with whipped cream and crushed peanut brittle, pecan halves, or chopped walnuts.
4. Top cooled pie wedges with small scoops of vanilla or nut ice cream.

Orange-Kist Whipped Cream

- 1 cup whipping cream
- ½ teaspoon finely grated orange rind
- ¼ cup powdered sugar
- 1 tablespoon coarsely grated orange rind for garnish

Combine whipping cream and the finely grated orange rind in mixing bowl several hours before whipping "to marry" the flavors. Whip the cream; add the sugar. Garnish the pie with dollops of cream and sprinkle with the coarsely grated orange rind. Yields approximately 2 cups.

Pumpkin Souffle

- 4 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
- ¼ cup light brown sugar
- ¾ teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
- ½ cup milk
- 1 can (30 ounces) pumpkin pie mix
- 2 eggs, separated
- 1 envelope (2 ounces) whipped topping mix
- ½ cup milk
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- ½ cup walnuts, coarsely chopped

Combine gelatin, brown sugar and spice in heavy saucepan. Add milk, pie mix and slightly beaten egg yolks. Cook over medium heat 7 minutes, stirring constantly to prevent spattering. Remove from heat. Chill until cool, but not set, about 45 minutes. Meanwhile, place a 3-inch aluminum foil collar on a 1-quart souffle dish. (For firmness, fold regular foil several times or use heavy duty foil. Wrap around top edge of dish, joining ends together with a strip of tape.) Beat egg whites until stiff. Whip the topping mix with the milk and vanilla as package directs. Fold the egg whites and whipped topping into chilled pumpkin mixture. Turn into souffle dish. Chill until firm. Remove collar and gently press the walnuts around the raised sides. Yields 6 cups filling for 1-quart souffle with raised collar.

Pumpkin Nut Bread

- 1 cup butter or margarine, softened
- 3 cups sugar
- 3 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 can (16 ounces) solid pack pumpkin
- 3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1½ teaspoons cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon cloves
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 cup chopped walnuts
- 1 cup dark or golden raisins

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cream butter and add sugar gradually; beat in eggs and vanilla. Add pumpkin, mixing to combine. Sift together the flour, salt, soda, baking powder and spices; blend with pumpkin mixture. Add nuts and raisins. Place batter in 2 greased and floured 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pans. Bake for approximately 60 to 65 minutes or until bread tests done with wooden pick. Let stand 10 minutes; remove from pans; cool on rack. Wrap and store overnight before slicing. Yields 2 loaves.

Flavor variations: Add any one of these mixtures to batter and reduce raisins to ½ cup.

1. 1 cup fruit and raisin granola (smaller, fairly even-textures granolas blend into bread recipes better than the large chunk types).
2. 1 cup all bran buds
3. ½ cup sesame seeds
4. ½ cup diced dates

Cool Harvest-Moon Soup

- 1½ cups water
- 2 teaspoons chicken flavor instant bouillon from a 3.5 ounce jar
- 1 can (10-¾ ounces) cream of chicken soup
- ½ cup solid pack pumpkin
- ¼ cup half and half
- dash celery salt
- sour cream and chopped chives, garnish

Add bouillon granules to water in small saucepan. Heat to dissolve bouillon. Pour into blender, add cream soup, pumpkin, half and half and celery salt. Blend thoroughly (or beat mixture in mixing bowl with rotary beater). Chill. Stir before serving. Garnish with chives or sour cream (thinned with a little half and half so it will float on soup) and a sprinkling of chives. Yields 3½ cups.

Our food's safely preserved

As our pantry stocks dry up

by BARBARA LADD

Drying food has been a part of Geraldine West's life. As a child, just before U.S. involvement in World War II, she helped "put up" foods — canning or drying whatever her family raised.

"My ancestors crossed the plains and those people naturally stored foods," she said. "Preserving food has been a part of my life."

In the past, drying food was a way of life for most people. It was one of the major processes the colonists used to preserve the bulk of their winter stores.

But with the advent of pressure canners and commercial availability of food items, drying was pushed aside. There were several reasons.

A string of cloudy, humid days was a threat to the whole process and resulted in fermentation of the fruits or vegetables.

INSECTS, BIRD droppings and blowing dirt were natural hazards, and, although a thorough cooking usually made the food safe, it certainly wasn't as aesthetic as modern cooks might desire.

Also, the nutrient loss due to bacteria or excessive drying was hard for most homemakers to control.

But today there are a growing number of persons who are drying foods, says Dorothy Landgraf, Rolling Meadows, University of Illinois Extension home economist. "We're getting more and more questions about it — especially from the younger people."

Mrs. West, a resident of Arlington Heights, attributes the interest to the country's Bicentennial and the do-it-yourself enthusiasm it inspired.

"Doing things for yourself gives people a feeling of self-reliance," she said. A member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, she believes in self-dependency and always has a year's supply of canned and dried foods in store.

HER FAVORITE FOODS to dry are fruits — especially apples. "I'm from the Pacific northwest where fruits are so plentiful," she said. "Besides, I think fruits are nicer to dry because they retain their texture better than other foods."

A slice of tomato dries into just a sliver, she explained, but the fruits are more substantial.

Mrs. West uses the dried fruits as snacks for her four children and husband, since she doesn't keep "empty-calorie" foods in the house. Her 13-year-old son eats the fruits as "quick energy" during his cross country practices and the whole family packs them along on hiking trips.

"Everything you see dehydrated in the store you can dehydrate yourself," said Mrs. West, who owns her own food dryer. "I use the vegetables in soups, casseroles and other cooked foods."

IT'S NOT NECESSARY to buy a food dryer, although Mrs. West finds it more convenient for the quantities of foods she dries. "An oven works just great," she said. "Just set it at about 120 degrees, prop the oven door open and rotate the trays until the food dries."

Besides preserving foods Mrs. West enjoys all types of cooking and delights in teaching her techniques to her two children who are still at home. She is a registered nurse and helps conduct workshops for the Red Cross and the American Cancer Association. She ahd her husband, Owen, have lived in Arlington Heights for about eight years.

HERBS, FRUITS AND VEGETABLES can be easily dried in regular ovens, although Geraldine West, Arlington Heights, prefers her commercial food dehydrator for the large quantities of foods she preserves. She uses dried vegetables in various prepared foods and fruits as snacks. She bakes apple pies by rehydrating the dried fruit before mixing with sugar and spices.

AS A CONVENIENCE item, dried onions can be purchased in supermarkets for well over the price it takes to dry them at home.

Information available on procedures to dry fruits and vegetables

In drying foods sufficient moisture must be removed from the food to prevent its decay. Bulk and energy (caloris) are not affected, but there is some vitamin and mineral loss in the drying process.

Dried foods should be packaged in dry, scalded, insect and rodent-proof containers or jars as soon as they are cool.

This inofrmation is based on "Home Drying of Fruits and Vegetables," a booklet put out by the Illinois Cooperative Extension Service. Copies may be obtained by calling 991-1160.

The pamphlet suggests that apples, herbs, dry beans, peas and onions are the easiest foods to dry at home. They should be in prime quality and thoroughly washed before preparing them for drying, it advises.

"SUN DRYING is not recommended," said Dorothy Landgraf, University of Illinois Extension home economist. "If people in Chicago think enough sun gets through the clouds and pollution here, they're sadly mistaken."

Instead of the sun, satisfactory drying conditions can be created at a moderate cost by using artificial heat and circulating air over the food. A kitchen oven or a portable food dehydrator works equally well, although the drying process takes a considerable time and people may want to use their ovens for other purposes.

To prevent darkening, slice fruits in an ascorbic acid or salt and water solution, then sulphur them to stop further darkening.

To sulphur foods, sulphur powder should be rolled in paper and burned in a sulphuring box with fruit. Since that is a rather cumbersome process, Mrs. Landgraf recommends using one teaspoon of sodium bisulfite in each gallon of water and soaking the prepared fruit in it for five minutes. Drain and dry the fruit. (Sodium bisulfite may be purchased in pharmacies.)

VEGETABLES NEED to be blanched before they are dried.

Dry no more than four to six pounds of prepared food at one time. The pamphlet recommends the fruit or vegetable be placed on a drying tray (not cookie sheets or cake pans) for proper circulation. Trays consist of screening or wood slats attached to a frame and covered with clean cheesecloth or other thin cloth.

The oven should be set at 120 to 140 degrees and the door propped open slightly to keep the oven from getting too hot. An electric panplaced in front of the door creates a continuous flow of air and speeds up the drying. It's also a good idea to rotate the trays.

Drying can take anywhere from 4 to 12 hours and careful watching is a must. In general, vegetables should be dried until they are brittle and fruits should be pliable.

Solar drying not advocated

Solar drying of food should be attempted only in a very dry climate such as that of California or Arizona, say experts at Cornell University's Division of Nutritional Sciences.

In areas of heavy dew, oven or electrical dehydrator drying should be used. The initial drying period should be a long, uninterrupted one, so the food will not sweat. Moisture that remains on food being dried may cause mold.

Recipes for mud turtle, baked bear squelch myth of the good ol' days

by JEANNE LESEM

The good old days of cooking definitely did not cover 1876. Not if one judges from The National Cookery Book compiled for the Women's Centennial Committees of the International Exhibition in Philadelphia a century ago.

Recipes from an Oneida Indian squaw include baked bear's meat that called for reserving excess grease to sell to traders for hair oil.

DIRECTIONS for cooking mud turtle begin: "Put the turtles alive in boiling water. . ."

A copy of the now-rare cookbook is in a recently opened exhibit in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington D.C., that recreates the Philadelphia fair. Only in part did the 300-page cookbook reflect the ethnic diversity of the 36 states of the period. The compilers included Dutch and German sauerkraut and cole slaw, French brioche, mayonnaise and omelets, African gumbo and okra, and even Italian spaghetti, but omitted recipes of Chinese, Irish, Mexican and Scandinavian heritage, although immigrants of all four nationalities had already settled in the United States.

Not all the recipes are as unappetizing as baked bear and mud turtle. Mississippi crab soup sounds pretty good, although it contains only six crabs in a strained broth made with beef or fowl, vegetables and a little spice.

BAKED PORK and beans are made almost the same way today as they were a century ago, but with one major exception: the centennial book called for cooking the beans all day in an iron pot or earthen crock covered with a homemade lid of flour and water dough.

"Earthenware crocks are to be had in New England, diminishing in size at the top, made expressly for this purpose," the book advised.

"It's been said that you need to know how to cook to use most modern cookbooks. That was even truer a century ago, but women had one advantage we lack today. No girl's education was considered complete in those days without knowledge of cookery. Even a homemaker who could afford a cook had to know how to supervise the kitchen staff.

FOR THAT REASON, most recipes gave sketchy directions, if at all. Ingredients were listed helter-skelter, rarely in order of use, and even measurements were often left to the discretion or guesswork of the cook, as in Madison apple pie, for example.

It called for rich puff paste filled with apples, topped with more crust and baked without sugar or any thickening. That came later. Cream and sugar, flavored with rose, cinnamon or allspice were to be poured in at serving time. A neat trick, for the cook first had to remove the upper crust from the hot pie, add the foregoing ingredients, and restore the crust, unbroken, before sending the dish to the table.

What cooks in 1876 lacked for ingredients, they made up for with fanciful names. Cinderella puffs were sponge-light cupcakes. Rhode Island slump was spicy, molasses-flavored apple pie and a Kansas poor man's pudding in grasshopper times was old-fashioned rice pudding, skimpily sweetened with only half a cup of sugar for two quarts of milk and a cupful of uncooked rice.

As a sourvenir of the current exhibit, which is scheduled to run for two years, the Smithsonian is selling a booklet with recipes excerpted from the original. It is available at the institution's bookshop and by mail from Legado Press, 75-A G St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20024 for $2 postpaid.

Area's school's home recipes to go on sale

The Prospect Heights Nursery School, a non-profit organization, has collected recipes from mothers and teachers for two years and compiled them in "439 Family-tested recipes." The cookbook will be on sale for $4 at the school's bazaar Thursday, Nov. 4, at Prospect Heights Community Church.

The book contains a crockery cooking section and a chapter "For Kids Only." Information 392-6171 or 259-2492.

Different squash stuffing enhanced with cranberries

Cranberries add tartness and color to many dishes, but too often we cooks fail to combine them with other vegetables or stuffings. They do make a welcome new ingredient when combined with pineapple and crumbled corn muffins as a stuffing for baked squash.

CRANBERRY CROWN

3 acorn squash, halved, seeds removed
1 cup fresh or frozen fresh cranberries
½ cup sugar
¼ cup water
Dash ground cloves
1 cup well drained crushed pineapple
1 package (8 ounces) corn muffins, crumbled
½ cup butter or margarine, melted

Place squash halves cut side down on a buttered shallow baking pan. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for 35 minutes. In a saucepan, mix cranberries, sugar and water. Simmer for 5 minutes. Pour mixture into a bowl. Stir in remaining ingedients adding only ⅓ of the melted butter. Turn squash right side up on baking pan and fill each with cranberry mixture. Brush squash with remaining melted butter. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes longer or until tops are lightly browned and squash is fork tender. Makes 6 servings.

Biscuits top apple pie

Many a primer starts with apples. And the season for fresh Red and Golden Delicious apples starts in North Carolina. That state's mountain orchards have a happy combination of warm days and cool nights which get the fruit ready for market sooner than crops from other parts of the country.

The United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association recommends eating apples out-of-hand as snacks that act as "Nature's toothbrush." For fresh apple pie, try this biscuit topped deep-dish recipe with North Carolina apples.

DEEP-DISH DELICIOUS APPLE PIE

8 cups pared, cored and thinly sliced Red or Golden Delicious apples (about 8 medium)
¾ cup packed light brown sugar
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
¼ cup flour
1/8 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon grated fresh lemon rind

Topping:

2 cups prepared biscuit mix
2 tablespoons sugar
½ cup milk

To prepare filling, pare, core and thinly slice apples. Place in 1-quart casserole. Sprinkle with brown sugar, lemon juice, flour, salt, nutmeg, and lemon rind.

To prepare topping, mix biscuit mix, sugar and milk in bowl until smooth. Form into a ball and roll out on floured surface to a circle 9 inches in diameter, or 2 inches larger than diameter of casserole. Place over apples and seal around edge. Bake in 400 degree oven 45 min utseuntil topping is browned and apples are tender. Serve warm with creah or ice cream.

Makes 6 servings.

DISCOUNT SUPERMARKETS

We're everything a supermarket should be!

Another in a series from Eagle's Value Checklist, designed to help you get total value for your food dollars!

That's the philosophy behind every price we stamp on every product we sell at Eagle.

First of all, there's no multiple item pricing. Each item is priced individually so there's never any guesswork or mathematics on your part. And you don't have to buy more of a product than you really want in order to save.

Secondly, you can count on the price on the shelf being the same as the price on the products. Again, no guesswork. You can tell immediately the exact price of the item.

Finally, when we give you a good price (and you'll find a whole store full of low prices at Eagle), we don't limit your savings by putting a limit on quantities. You can buy as many cans of peas, boxes of detergent, loaves of bread...whatever...as many as you wish, at the same low price each. No limits on quantities.

A supermarket's pricing Policy should be simple.

Creativity spotlights her sidedishes

A CHILDHOOD in Norfolk, Va. inspired Faye Breen's love of seafood. One of her specialties is a creamy, tangy shrimp and crab salad. Faye prepares it for luncheons in the winter months or for family dinners on hot evenings.

by LOIS SEILER

Faye and Ray Breen of Mount Prospect love the flavor of grilled food, and cook outdoors all year 'round. If it's raining, Ray stands under a big beach umbrella; if there's snow, he shovels off the patio so he can use the grill.

Faye concentrates her culinary efforts on vegetable dishes and salads to dress up the grilled meat. She usually changes basic recipes to suit her taste and has concocted many dishes from scratch.

One such combination is hearty stuffed tomato. Faye fills very large tomato shells with a mixture of mixed vegetables and celery soup and sprinkles Italian-seasoned bread crumbs over the top. The stuffed tomatoes are baked just until bubbly. They make an excellent accompaniment for grilled steak or any type of beef.

Cream of cauliflower soup is a recipe which Faye changed almost completely. It consists of cooked cauliflower, hot milk, onion, egg yolks and cheese. Before serving, she sprinkles crisp, crumbled bacon over the top. Rich and tasty, the soup is ideal for the winter months. Because of the bacon flavor, Faye suggests this as a first course for a dinner featuring pork.

This inventive cook has also devised some special luncheon dishes. One is a salad featuring crab meat and shrimp perked up with onion, celery and hard-cooked eggs. Thousand Island dressing and mayonnaise add a tangy flavor and a creamy texture. Faye serves this over lots of lettuce and provides cocktail sauce ofr those who want it.

Her Vegetable Medley can be served for lunch or brunch. Onion, mushrooms and mixed vegetables are baked in a cheese sauce and then spooned over English muffins. Slices of hard-cooked eggs cover the top. "The eggs really make this dish," Faye said.

Mother of a year-old son, Faye works part time as a court reporter. She is an avid cyclist, and is active in Mount Prospect Newcomers' Women's and couples gourmet groups.

STUFFED TOMATOES

6 very large tomatoes
1 package (10 ounces) frozen, mixed vegetables, cooked and drained
1 can cream of celery soup, undiluted
½ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon butter, melted
¼ cup Italian seasoned bread crumbs

Slice top off each tomato. Carefully remove centers to make tomato shells. Chop the centers to make two cups and drain off juice.

Combine chopped tomatoes with cooked vegetables, warm up soup, salt and pepper. Place tomato shells in a shallow, 6-cup baking dish and fill with vegetable mixture. Combine butter with bread crumbs and sprinkle over the top.

Bake at 350 degrees just until bubbly. (If cooked too long, tomatoes will split.) Serves 6.

CREAM OF CAULIFLOWER SOUP

1 head cauliflower
4 cups boiling water
2 cups skimmed milk
4 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons sliced onion
2 teaspoons salt
2 egg yolks
6 tablespoons grated Cheddar cheese
½ pound cooked, crumbled bacon

Cook cauliflower in boiling water, uncovered, until tender. Drain. Place in blender, add milk and blend. (Or mash cauliflower in a food mill and add milk.)

Melt butter; add onion and saute until yellow but not brown. Add salt and the milk and cauliflower mixture and heat over low setting.

Beat egg yolks slightly; add a little of the hot mixture to yolks, return to pan and stir well. Blend in cheese and stir until cheese melts. When serving, sprinkle crumbled bacon on top. Serves 6.

CRAB AND SHRIMP SALAD

½ pound fresh or canned crab meat
½ pound canned shrimp
¼ cup finely-chopped onion
¼ cup finely-chopped celery
2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1/3 cup Thousand Island Dressing Mayonnaise

Combine all ingredients, adding enough mayonnaise to make mixture creamy. Chill for 2 to 3 hours. Serve

Buyers' use of coupons increases

Many consumers are becoming more budget conscious when they shop for food, according to the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's Economic Research Service (ERS).

Last spring ERS surveyed 1,400 households in the United States, asking consumers to compare their food buying habits with those of the previous year.

About 30 per cent of the consumers said they now check newspaper ads more frequently for "specials," save and use more coupons, and buy more food in volume.

At least a tenth of them said they made fewer trips to food stores, mainly to save gasoline. More than a fifth said they were preparing food from scratch more often, mostly to save money.

OTHER CONSUMERS took different approaches to shopping. A fifth of the shoppers surveyed never saved or used food coupons or bought food in volume. Nearly a third never went to more than one store to find the best food buys, probably because 60 per cent of all food buyers do their major shopping at only one store.

The survey also asked consumers how often they shop and how long it takes. Once-a-week major shopping was common for 57 per cent of the shoppers. For those who go to only one store, about half spent 30 to 60 minutes shopping and 10 to 20 minutes at the checkout counter.

Sixty per cent of all food buyers said they try to shop when a store is not crowded.

The results from this survey are part of a study by the ERS to assess consumers' behavior, attitudes, needs and knowledge that relate to food. More results are expected to be released later this year.

Indians, cranes love cranberry

It's a little early to give thanks for the berry from the bogs — the berry cranes love to eat. And is that why our early settlers called them cran(e)berries? American Indians believed that cranberries had medicinal properties, and medicine men brewed cranberry poultices to draw poison from arrow wounds.

Indians of South America, the Mayans, equated food with security. Corn was king. They revered corn, praying to it for divine deliverance from earthquakes. They offered corn on their altars. To them corn symbolized power — it had magic.

In the late 1800s, corn popped up like magic in Michigan. Dr. John Kellogg, who ran a health sanitarium and concocted foods to increase his patients' longevity, was first thought to be THE corn flakes Kellogg. His brother, William, had used John's face on the box to help sell the cereal until John objected. William was largely instrumental in touching off the breakfast food boom.

If you're in the business of selling corn flakes, don't do it on Sunday in Columbus, Ohio. It's against the law.

Ten years before corn flakes, Charles Post was peddling "Elijah's Manna," a wheat cereal illustrated with a Biblical scene on the box. Then Post learned it was an advertising no-no. Post also invented Grape Nut Flakes whidh he promoted as good for "inflamed appendix, comsumption, malaria and loose teeth."

Speaking of loose teeth, each of us eats an average of 18 pounds of candy, and all together we spend $3 billion on candy. ("How sweet it is!" cried the dentist). Incidentally, the lyricist who wrote "I call my sugar candy" was 100 per cent correct. Candy comes from the word sugar.

There's a story about how chicken a la king got its name. In the early 1900s, a polo player, Foxhall Keane, suggested serving creamed chicken in a pastry to the chef at Delmonico's restaurant in New York City. So the chef called it Chicken a la Keane, which somehow became 'king.'

But that story is disputed by the chef at the Brighton Beach Hotel in Brooklyn. He claimed to have prepared it in 1898 for his boss, E. Clarke King II, who liked it so well he named it after himself. It just could have been that the recipe was so named because it was "fit for a king." Who knows?

In 1600, a German astrologer, Johannes Kepler, made the first liverwurst. Any disputants?

Sandwich tasty, easy to tackle

It's kick, pass and punt time across the land as football players from the Peewees to the Pros turn out in full force.

Also out, (or is it in?) in full force are the armchair quarterbacks. For those long weekends of football viewing, set aside some special recipes the male members of the group can make easily, and enjoy, such as sandwiches starting with Norway sardines, shredded cabbage and onions on dark bread or a Nordic omelet with cheese served on buns or English muffins.

ARMCHAIR QUARTERBACK SANDWICHES

1 can (3¾ ounces) Norway sardines, drained and chopped.
2 cups finely shredded cabbage
½ cup thinly sliced celery
1 teaspoon dried chives or 1 chopped green onion
1 teaspoon herbed vinegar
Salt and pepper
12 slices dark bread, lightly buttered.

Lightly toss together sardines, cabbage, celery, chives and vinegar. Season to taste. Serve as sandwich filling on dark bread. Makes 6 sandwiches.

Note: Substitute shredded lettuce for cabbage, if desired.

NORDIC OMELET SANDWICH

1 tablespoon butter
1 large tomato, sliced
Salt and pepper
¼ teaspoon oregano
5 eggs, slightly beaten
1 can (3¾ ounces) Norway sardines, drained.
½ cup shredded cheese (mozzarella, provolone, Jack)
Chopped green onions
4 buns or English muffins

Melt butter in 9-inch skillet. Arrange tomato slices in butter. Season with salt, pepper and oregano. Pour eggs over tomatoes; cover pan and cook over medium-low heat 4 minutes. Uncover pan and arrange sardines wheel spoke-fashion on eggs and sprinkle cheese between sardines. Cover pan again and continue cooking 4 minutes longer, or until eggs are set in the center and cheese melts. Garnish with green onion. Spoon onto warm buns or toasted English muffins for open-face sandwich. Makes 4 servings.

Sharp cheese enhances quick bread

In a move to cut costs and eat more wholesome, healthful foods, more and more people are baking their own bread. Bread-making, however, does require time.

For those of us "would-be" bread bakers who can't find the time, short-order Cheese Bread can be put together in a hurry. Buttermilk biscuit mix does the trick. When mixed with sharp cheddar cheese, egg, milk and a touch of mustard, this blend — baked in a 1½-quart baking dish — produces a finely textured bread in an unusual shape.

CHEESE BREAD

3¾ cups buttermilk biscuit mix
1¼ cups shredded natural sharp cheddar cheese
1 egg, beaten
1¼ cups milk
½ teaspoon dry mustard
Sesame, poppy or caraway seed

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Generously grease a glass-ceramic 1½-quart baking dish (7 by 5½ by 3-inches). In large mixing bowl, mix all ingredients just to blend. Beat vigorously for one minute. Pour into prepared pna. Sprinkle top with sesame, poppy or caraway seed. Bake for 55 to 60 minutes. Cool slightly before slicing. Makes 1 loaf.
